POLITICAL CONVENTIONS.

PENNSYLVANIA.

The Republican State Convention—Speech of Hon. Galusha A. Grow and Others—Renomination of Governor Geary.

PHILADELPHIA, Wednesday, June 23.

The delegates of the Pennsylvania Republican State Convention assembled in Concert Hall, in this city, to-day, for the purpose of nominating candidates for Governor and Judges of the Supreme Court. The entire State was well represented by delegates, and the body of the hall was well filled, many citizens of Philadelphia and of other portions of the State, not delegates, being present. At 10:30 o'clock the Convention was called to order by Hon. GALUSHA A. GROW, Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee. Mr. GROW addressed the Convention as follows:

GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION: Before fulfilling the duties incident to the position I hold, allow me one word of congratulation on the auspices under which you meet. One year ago the people of this country were entering one of the most vital political contests in their history. It was to be the last closing scene of the bloody drama of eight years, in which great principles were being settled forever in the institutions of the country. In that struggle the Republicans led the forlorn hope, and they bore the banner of the party to triumphs and victory in October. Around that banner cluster memories of the notable battle waged in that decade of our history. That banner represents to-day the unity of the Republic, the perpetuity of its institutions, an enlarged and noble patriotism, and a humanity as broad as the race. It is young in years, but old in its ideas and the might of its grand achievements. On the 30th day of MAY, 1854, Congress, under the control of Democratic principles, repealed the Missouri Compromise, and enacted what was known as the Kankas-Nebraska bill. The devotees of human bondage thought by this act they had secured its perpetuity. It went forth with fire and sword, and planted itself in the Territories of the Union. Fifteen years have passed away, and the sun in its course across the continent, from ocean to ocean, no longer rises on a master or sets on a slave. To-day every human being beneath the flag of our fathers stands up in the dignity of his manhood, proclaiming to the world "I am a man!" This is the mighty achievement of the organization which you represent. The darkness of human bondage, struggling against the enlightenment of the age, sent your sons and brothers to the battle-field to battle for the institutions of your fathers, and 300,000 of them sleep in honored graves. This is the sacrifice—while sorrow sits by almost every fireside—the sacrifice which was made to perpetuate the institutions and blessings bequeathed by your fathers. No thanks to the organization which you oppose to-day; we have a country to love and institutions to revere. Had its destinies been intrusted to them, the honored flag of our country might to-day be lying trailed in the dust; and, gentlemen of the Convention, you have now to perform your duty in perpetuating the greatness of the country. You are to select to-day a standard bearer for the contest that closes in October next, and in the Keystone State acknowledge now, as then, that in this great struggle we are ready to fight for the truth. For remember that the din of arms is no longer heard, but the war of ideas goes on. This is the war of the age. You battle in the same line, although the organization of which you are members has successfully withstood the march of human bondage on this continent. You have now a work to perform in perpetuating the great and material interests of the country. A truth has dawned upon you; you have realized the dream of COLUMBUS—we must go westward to-day to find the Indies. This grand achievement has been accomplished in your history, and you meet here to-day as the representatives of the party which has aided this great work. Your principles insure the progress of the age, and you are to select a leader to carry them out. Your standard bearer, whoever he may be, has a great duty to perform. Many of you have made sacrifices to save the country, and you now must have a man who, in the political conflict of one year ago, helped to save the party which you represent.

The next business in order, gentlemen, will be the calling of the roll of delegates, after which I will receive nominations for chairman of the temporary organization.

PRELIMINARY ORGANIZATION.

At the conclusion of Mr. GROW'S speech, the calling of the roll was proceeded with. Hon. HENRY SOUTHER, of Elk County, was then nominated for temporary chairman, and was unanimously elected. He was conducted to the platform, and said:

GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION: I return you my sincere and heartfelt thanks in being called upon to preside over your preliminary organization. I may say that I have no speech to make upon this occasion. I congratulate myself and I congratulate the members of this Convention upon the great unanimity which appears at this opening to pervade our counsel. I hope, fellow-delegates, that it may be continued to the end; that we may place in nomination on this occasion a gentleman who will carry the banner of the Republican Party next October to triumphant success. It is a proud record for any man, however humble, to belong to the Republican Party. It is a party which goes down to history as no other party ever will go down to history in these United States. It is the party which carried on and fought to completion and successful end the bloodiest wars that history has ever recorded. And it for us now, gentlemen, in the Keystone State, as it has been in times past, so to conduct ourselves that our banner shall not be lowered in the dust; but that whatever we may do, we may have the unwavering consciousness of knowing, when we look back upon our acts, we acting with the great Republican Party, that we have striven to do our best.

With these remarks, gentleman, the Chair is ready to entertain any motion that is in order.

Four temporary Secretaries were then chosen, after which a Committee of five on credentials, a Committee of thirty-three to select permanent officers, and a Committee of one from each Senatorial District to prepare resolutions, were appointed. It was voted that all resolutions be referred to the Committee without debate. The Convention then adjourned until 2 o'clock P. M.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The Convention reassembled at the hour named, and while waiting for the report of the Committee on Credentials, the following resolution was read and adopted, the Committee on Resolutions being discharged from its consideration:

Resolved, That Hon. GALUSHA A. GROW, in the discharge of the duties as Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, and his untiring labors in behalf of Republican ideas and principles, is entitled to the gratitude of the Republican Party.

Mr. GROW being present, returned thanks for the honor done him.

The report of the Committee on Permanent Organization being called for, it was presented, and reported as permanent Chairman JAS. L. GRAHAM, of Allegheny.

He was introduced by the retiring Chairman, who returned thanks for the courtesy that had been extended to himself, and hoped that the deliberations and proceedings would be as harmonious under the permonent Chairman as they had been while he was in the chair.

The Committee also reported a list of Vice-Presidents and Secretaries, which was agreed to.

Mr. GRAHAM, the Chairman, made the following address:

GENTLEMEN: I than you for the honor conferred—the unsolicited and unexpected honor conferred on me in calling me to preside over the deliberations of this Convention. It is not my intention at this time to make a speech. I am admonished, with the thermometer at 100, and many delegates here with their carpet-sacks ready to leave on the next train, that it would be in bad taste for me to occupy much of your time in making a speech or attempting to make one. You have met together to-day for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Governor of this Commonwealth and a Judge of the Supreme Court. You come here from all sections of this broad Commonwealth as the representative men of the Republican Party, and of the great, progressive and noble republican ideas. You are here, I trust, to subserve no personal interests; but I trust that you will willingly here to-day show that you love the Republican Party, and that you love republican principles above all personal or private admirations, prejudices or preferences. We should meet here to-day, my friends, as the representatives of the great Republican Party, with the ardent, fixed purpose to do nothing that would injure that party, but to do everything possible to promote its success and its best interests. I trust, therefore, that we will endeavor to lay aside all personal prejudices, and endeavor to act this day in unison and in harmony, so that we may promote the best interests of the great party with which we are identified, and whose interests we are here this day to subserve. The only hope that our foes have, the only hope that our political enemies entertain to-day, is that they may cause schism and division in the Republican ranks. If we to-day show a united front; if we to-day act in union and harmony; if we stand shoulder to shoulder, and show that the great Republican heart still beats true to the music of the Union—[applause]—that we are determined still to go on as we have for the last ten or twelve years, united heart to heart and hand to hand, doing battle against the foes of our country and the foes of our organization, we shall in the approaching contest achieve a triumph such as we have never yet achieved in the history of our party. We have a party of which we should be proud. Our party has made a record such as no other party in all recorded history can disclose. Our party, when this Union was in peril—when the dark clouds hovered around the horizon of our country—our party stood up and maintained the integrity of the Union, and carried the old flag successfully throughout the contest. The Republican Party has shown to the world that it is the party of progress—the party of principle. When 4,000,000 of human beings, created in God's own image, were ground down under the iron heel of oppression, until almost every lineament of Godhead and humanity were obliterated, the Republican Party struck the fetters from these 4,000,000 of human beings, and enstamped upon their foreheads and instilled into their hearts the love of the name of liberty. My Republican friends, let us show to the world, let us show to our political enemies, that while we may differ in reference to our choice of men, while we may not be in unity in reference to the man we would choose to bear our standard in the approaching contest, yet let us show to the world that we are united in sentiment in reference to the great principles that unite us together as a political organization. And let us to-day give strength, permanency and success to our organization by showing that we are willing to sacrifice all our personal preferences and our personal prejudices for the good of the party with which we have the honor to be connected. Gentlemen, I shall not occupy any more of your time. Ones more I thank you for the honor you have conferred upon me. We are now ready to proceed with the business of the Convention.

The Committee on Credentials having reported, nominations fos Governor were gone into, and the following gentlemen were presented:

General John W. Geary, of Cumberland County; General Horace M. Porter, of Dauphin County; Hon. George B. Lawrence, of Washington County; General Harry White, of Indiana County; General William Lilly, of Carbon County; General George G. Meade, of Philadelphia; Hon. Thomas M. Marshall, of Alleghany County—withdrew, and nominated General James G. Negley, of Alleghany County.

The name of Hon. GEORGE B. LAWRENCE was withdrawn, and a letter from General HARRY WHITE, withdrawing his name, was received.

A ballot was then proceeded with, resulting as follows:

General John W. Geary	122
General Horace M. Porter	1
General W. M. Lilly	4
General George G. Meade	4

General GEARY was then, amid the utmost enthusiasm, declared to be the nominee of the Republican Party; and, on motion, it was made unanimous.

A committee of five was appointed to wait on General GEARY and inform him of his nomination.

Hon. HENRY WILLIAMS, of Allegheny County, was nominated by acclamation as the candidate for the Judgeship of the Supreme Court.

OHIO.

The Ohio State Republican Convention—General Hayes Nominated for Governor—The Resolutions Adopted.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Wednesday, June 23.

The Republican State Convention organized to-day at 11 o'clock A. M., with Hon. BENJAMIN EGGLESTON as temporary Chairman. The usual committees were appointed, and the Convention took a recess till 1:30 P. M. The Convention organized permanently at 2 P. M., with JOHN SHERMAN as President, and E. A. PARROTT as Secretary.

The nominations made were: For Governor, R. B. HAYES; for Lieutenant-Governor, J. C. LEE; for Treasurer, S. S. WARNER; for Supreme Judge, LUTHER DAY; for Attorney-General, T. B. POND.

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That as citizens of the nation, representing the soldiers and sailors of an honored commonwealth, we regard with sincere satisfaction the fidelity evinced by General GRANT to the Republican Party, and the policy, both foreign and domestic, of his national administration, and pledge our cordial support to the measures inaugurated to insure conciliation, economy and justice at home, and command consideration and respect abroad.

Resolved, That we hail with pride the patriotic constitutional declaration of General GRANT in his inaugural address—that, "while he will on all subjects have a policy to recommend to Congress, he will have none to enforce against the will of the people"—a statement which assures the country of an Executive Administration founded on the Administrations of WASHINGTON and MADISON, and that will secure to Congress the unrestricted exercise of its constitutional functions, and to the people their rightful control of the Government.

Resolved, That the abolition of slavery was a national and necessary consequence of the war of the rebellion, and that the reconstruction measures of Congress were measures well adapted to effect the reconstruction of the Southern States, and secure the blessings of liberty and free government, and as a completion of these measures; and, finally, believing in its essential justice, we are in favor of the ratification of the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

Resolved, That the late General Assembly, in its reckless expenditures of public money, its utter neglect of the business interests of the State, by failing to enact wise and much-needed financial measures, providing for the assessment and equalization of taxation prepared by the Commissioners appointed by the preceding General Assembly; its hostility to our benevolent and literary institutions; its failure to carry out the repeated pledges of the Democratic Party to secure economy in the State; its extraordinary length of session in time of peace, resulting in an expense to the State amounting for the pay of its members alone to more than double that of the preceding General Assembly; its malignant attempts to disfranchise disabled soldiers and citizens of the State; its attempts to take from the General Government the right to pursue, arrest and punish those who violate the laws made in pursuance of the Constitution of the United States, and vicious acts intended to destroy the power of the nation to preserve and protect the liberty and safety of its citizens, has shown the Democratic Party unworthy the trust, confidence and support of an honest and patriotic people.

Resolved, That the Republican Party of Ohio is in favor of the speedy establishment of the Soldiers' Orphans' Home in Ohio, not only as an act of justice to the many poor, helpless orphans of deceased soldiers, but as a recognition of the patriotic services of their fathers in the late war, and for the purpose of redeeming the pledges made by all loyal people to protect the families of those who fought and fell in the cause of human liberty and right.

After the adoption of the resolutions, General HAYES was introduced and made a speech, which was enthusiastically received.

The Convention, which was fully attended and very harmonious, then adjourned sine die.

DAVIS, of Nueces; Lieutenant-Governor, Colonel J. W. FLANNAGAN, of Rusk; Commissioner of Land Office, JACOB KEUCHLER, of Parker; Treasurer, WM. D. PRICE, of Travis. It also appointed a Committee to prepare an address. This duty has been attended to, and in the address the Committee say: "Party lines are now established. There are but two sides to this great question. On the one you have a united solid body of men, moved by the eternal principles of truth and sustained by the policyof Congress; and on the other there is a heterogeneous mass, made up of the Democrats, secessionists, downright rebels, Knights of the White Camelia, Kuklux and renegade Republicans, who love the spoils of office better than the welfare of the country. These are the two parties before you for your votes. General E. J. DAVIS is the representative of the first, and General A. J. HAMILTON is the acknowledged representative of the last. Choose ye then between them. Claiming Republicanism, General HAMILTON stands before the world the leader of its enemies—their adopted field-marshal. No honest Democrat will touch him and no Republican can give him his support."

ARRIVAL OF THE STEAMSHIP MORRO CASTLE.

By the steamship Morro Castle, which left Havana June 19, we are in receipt of late and important intelligence from Cuba. For the prompt delivery of our highly-interesting correspondence we are once more indebted to the thoughtfulness and activity of Purser R. W. ALBERT.

Condition of Affairs—Spaniards and Cubans—The Arrest of the Cuban Junta—Comments of the Press—War News—Emigration—Forced Loans—Death of Lacunza—Miscellaneous Intelligence.

From Our Own Correspondent.

HAVANA, Saturday, June 19, 1869.

The situation of affairs is daily becoming more complicated. Nevertheless, we know enough to convince even the most skeptical that from Cienfuegos southward, the country and the contending armies are not only in a deplorable but in a horrible condition. Although the Spanish forces are called a regularly organized army, they nevertheless are nothing but irregular forces of guerrillas, and in this respect enjoy but a slight advantage over their antagonists.

The leaders are weak, as I need hardly say. The Cubans, however, are no better off, having only one fighting General of ability, General DONATO MARMOL, the news of whose death has not yet been confirmed. QUESADA may be a man of great talent, but he has not given any proofs to that effect as yet. The leaders who arrived with the fillibustering expeditions have not yet had time to use their knowledge or valor so as to become famous. That they will do so is the general belief of Spaniards and Cubans. The question naturally arises, Is the want of competent Generals or leaders the cause of the prolongation of the war? To a certain extent it is, but the peculiar mode of warfare requires not only military leaders, but also proper and sufficient material to lead. No Spanish commander can possibly get more than two thousand men together. And he cannot keep them together for any length of time afterward, because the insurgents are very numerous and always on the alert to attack trains or the smaller detachments, and because there is not a sufficiency of troops to march against the enemy with any great chance of success, and hold all important strategical points at the same time. The natural consequence of this want of forces has been the advance of the Cubans, who have become the attacking instead of the retreating party. But the common enemy which has just made its appearance, the dreaded cholera, may change the aspect of the war considerably, if the accounts of its ravages and violence are such as set forth by letters received from Nuevitas, Sanctus Spiritus and the surrounding country. This epidemic must, of necessity, be fatal among the two armies composed of badly-clothed, worn-out and ill-fed men. If not properly attended to and if a rigid quarantine be not established, its reappearance in Havana will be merely a question of time. The yellow fever and vomito are very severe this season, more cases having occurred than in any year since 1853, and the rate of mortality being thirty per cent. higher. The cause of this may be found in the increased material, as nearly 20,000 unacclimated Spaniards have arrived here within the past six months. Among the shipping in the harbor, especially where the crews on the men-of-war have but recently arrived from Spain, the mortality has been very large, 127 having been sent to the Military Hospital from the iron-clad Victoria alone. The Cubans relied a great deal on the approach of Summer and the consequent yellow-fever epidemic, and they were not mistaken; but the number of deaths among the Spanish soldiery has not been of sufficient amount to make them abandon the enterprise.

THE ARREST OF THE JUNTA.

The news of the imprisonment of the Junta Cubana caused the most intense excitement here, and the more so because it was entirely unexpected. The Cubans were thunderstruck and knew not what to think of it. They had already begun to believe that the United States would not enforce the Neutrality laws or forget the Alabama question with England; they also forgot that a great difference exists between the carrying out of the International laws, and the expression of the sympathy felt for a struggling people. The majority of Spaniards, however, were as ignorant as to the meaning of the arrest as the inhabitants of the Senegal or Gambia might be. A Spanish merchant gravely informed me that the United States Government would send them here on board of a man-of-war, and that the revolution was over now. Another told me that they would remain in prison at least until the revolution was entirely subdued. The Cubans learned during the afternoon that all the members of the Junta who had been arrested had been released on giving bail. Of course full particulars are wanting, and many versions of the affair are in circulation, but the fact of the arrest has given the Spanish cause renewed life and vigor, and roused their hopes of success, which were considerably depressed, although the discomfiture of the Laborantes and sympathizers did not decline in a corresponding ratio. The Diario says, in relation to the arrest:

"Mr. LOPEZ ROBERTS, our Minister in Washington, has fully complied with his mission, and the strength of reason, which is worth more than reasons of strength, has undoubtedly made Mr. FISH understand how much the honor of a nation so powerful as the United States was interested in not permitting a handful of bad Spaniards, who at the same time are bad Cubans, to act in such a shameless manner as hitherto, to enlist men, buy arms and dispatch expeditions in order to increase the misfortunes from which this island suffers at present. The authorities of the United States ought to interfere with untiring zeal in order that such scandals may not be augmented. The members of the revolutionary Junta have made themselves unworthy of the protection which nations generally grant to pacific political refugees, and they can no longer remain under the security of laws which they have disregarded hundreds of times. The American Government has undoubtedly recognized what is due to a loyal nation like Spain and to itself, and having once taken the first step on the broad road of legality and good understanding, it is not probable that it will stop on the way, but will heed religiously all international laws until this country is pacified, which it would have been long ago, if the chimerical hopes of the insurgents had not been kept alive with the aid of men and money sent by the emigrés in the Union."

The Diario continues in the same strain, and the local Press generally join in the chorus.

"WAR SUMMARY."

Despite the numerous victories achieved by the Spaniards and chronicled with such grand flourishes by the Press generally, the revolution drags its weary course along as if gifted with a species of immortality. Week follows week, and even months swell the record of the past, each heaping (if we are to believe the Spanish accounts) new laurels on their brows.

The Correo de Cuba gives an account of the landing of some 120 patriots on the coast near Macambo. They were composed chiefly of lawyers, clerks, and Cuban students, who came here with the intention of taking possession of the Government of the jurisdiction referred to, having been led to believe in New-York that their compatriots had complete possession of all the ports of the island. News of their landing was soon received at Baracoa, and a column of twenty veterans and 600 mobilized volunteers at once moved out to intercept and capture them. They were surrounded soon after by the Spaniards, and the following brilliant results secured by the latter: Four Generals were captured, with 100 rifled muskets, 2 brass cannon, 80 boxes of ammunition, and shin-plasters of the Cuban Republic of the denominations of $1, $5, $10 and $50, amounting in value nominally to $2,000,000. What became of the prisoners captured is not stated in the account, but the natural supposition is that they were charitably disposed of by being, as usual, "pasados por las arm as."

The fillibusters are still coming, as we have reports of the landing of two expeditions, one near Nuevitas, composed of 800 men, and reported to have sailed from Baltimore, and the other of 250 men, reported to have landed at Cienaga de Lapate, on the south side. The Government denies the truth of the latter report, but I have just learned that some bodies of armed men were seen yesterday at Palmillas, and are presumed to have formed part of the expedition, or else to have been insurgents on their way to meet the fillibusters.

EMIGRATION.

The emigration of Cubans and Spaniards is on the increase, and in a short time the principal families will have left the island. Then look out for failures and a commercial crisis. The Counts of CANONGO, SAN FERNANDO, O'REILLY and POZOS DULCES, the Marquis of ALMENDARES and Dr. GUTIENES are expected to leave in a few days. The Count of POZOS DULCES has received a hint that it would be healthier for him to dwell in a foreign country than at home. POZOS DULCES is the originator and original leader of the Cuban revolution. Although he pretends not to have taken any active part in it, and still retains his position as a member of the Board of Aldermen, it is improbable to believe that the ex-editor of the Siglo and brother-in-law of General LOPEZ, the bitter enemy of the Diario and Prensa, and former leader of Young Cuba, whom he has trained, could be otherwise than a sympathizer with the revolution.

QUASIMODO.

THE FILLIBUSTERS.

The Cuban Sympathizers in Court—An Indictment Found Against Them by the Grand Jury—They are All Admitted to Bail.

At 1 o'clock P. M. yesterday, the United tates Marshal's officers, the men charged with violating the Neutrality laws of the United States by fitting out an expedition to Cuba, their counsel, and a large assemblage of their friends, occupied the United States Circuit Court-room where at the hour named, they had been cited to appear before Commissioner OSBORN in order to undergo a preliminary examination. The Commissioner took his seat soon after 1 o'clock, and Mr. JOHN SEDGWICK, the leading counsel for the defendants, arose and said that they were ready to proceed. The prosecuting officers of the Government were not, however, present. The Commissioner stated that the District-Attorney had requested a delay of twenty minutes, as he was very much engaged, and that if at the end of that time he was not present the case would proceed without him.

After waiting until 2 o'clock, the District-Attorney failing to appear, the Commissioner said he would proceed with the examination after fixing the bail of the four men arrested on Wednesday. They were held to bail in $5,000 each.

Mr. ROGER A. PRYOR, counsel for Dr. FREDERICK J. MCNULTY and E. W. DE BOER, asked their discharge on the ground that the affidavit in the case contained nothing to warrant their detention.

The Commissioner refused to discharge them.

Mr. PRYOR said he preferred that the cases of these two men should be considered separately from the others; and the hearing in their case was set down for 1 P. M. to-day.

Mr. BELL, the Assistant District-Attorney, now entered the Court-room, and the case of Colonel W. O. C. RYAN being called, arose and said that he was informed the Grand Jury had made a presentment against all the parties. If this was the case—and he should know in a few minutes—the jurisdiction of the Commissioner over these cases ceased.

Mr. SEDGWICK said that as the Grand Jury was a secret tribunal, and as there was no certain information that its action related to the charges now under examination against these parties, it was proper that the Commissioner should proceed with the case. The District-Attorney ought assuredly to redeem his promise made the day before, that he would now proceed with the case, and produce MAXIMILIAN ST. JOHN, who had made the affidavit against these parties.

Mr. BELL thought he was correct in saying that the Grand Jury had passed upon the very matters contained in the affidavit of Mr. ST. JOHN, and he was informed that the Marshal had a process ready to execute. If a higher authority had taken hold of the case, it was out of the Commissioner's power to proceed.

Mr. LOWRIE said he had no doubt the Grand Jury had acted on this matter. He was led to believe this because it was appropriate that this movement, being a proceeding in the interest of the Spanish Government—a Government under TENNESSEE.

An Inside View of the Political Situation —Brownlow as Judged from a "Loyal" Standpoint—Johnson and Brownlow Under the Same Banner.

From Our Own Correspondent.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Monday, June 14, 1869.

The changes in the political situation in this State are more surprising to those who have closely watched the developments now consummated than to those who have been only casual observers or indifferent to what was passing. There are some facts developed by these changes which are instructive and interesting. In the pure sciences there are great truths always recognized and admitted age after age, but in the moral sciences great principles and truths need demonstration and proof, over and over again—to generation after generation. So in the history of great political revolutions we live over again or pass through experiences which our ancestors chronicled for our guidance, but which we heeded not. Proscriptive and partisan legislation and bitter political animosities have worked out, in this State, the disastrous and humiliating results which were predicted or might have been expected from the examples given us in history. The leaders of the dominant party in Tennessee have for years fortified themselves against the opposition engendered in their partisan course by their secret party societies, and the bitter, unyielding prejudices they carefully nourished. Opposition—no matter from what source it came, no matter how pure the character or eminent the ability of the opponent—was broken down by violent personal assaults or bitter detraction. Men who served gallantly in the Union armies, and whose integrity and fidelity to principle were above suspicion, were assailed as rebels and traitors the moment they dared remonstrate against the violence and extravagance of their party. By such means the party organization was kept intact, and party discipline rigorously enforced. Men quietly submitted and supported extreme measures, rather than submit to the violence and hatred of their former political associates, or run the risk of an alliance with men whose extravagance on the other extreme was not unlikely. For four years this party allegiance has been exacted. Chief among the men who were intolerant and uncompromising in these exactions was Governor BROWNLOW—the embodiment of partisan violence and intolerance. But he will not escape from the disorders and demoralization he has caused without being first subjected to the violence of the partisan prejudices he nurtured. He is now arrayed against the very men whom he has schooled and trained in the exciting violent controversies through which we have passed. They know and realize that the change on his part was to carry out the schemes and to secure the ascendancy of a corrupt political ring, and not because he has changed at heart, or has the peace and prosperity of the State nearest in view.

They turn against him, therefore, the shafts of partisan fury he framed, and he is to-day as bitterly cursed and assailed as any man in the State. He is to-day a victim to the party malice and fury he always encouraged and directed against his political opponents. He never granted tolerance or charity to any one differing with him, and he dare not ask either now. If he was sincere and honest in his change, he would not even merit them, for he never yielded either. These facts are necessary to be considered in judging of the situation in Tennessee. Neither Governor SENTER nor Senator BROWNLOW carry with them any considerable number of their partisans. Mark my distinction—their partisans. There are thousands of Republicans now supporting universal suffrage in this State who do it because they always have been liberal and tolerant. Governor SENTER has their support, but not because they have any confidence in his sincerity or good faith. SENTER and BROWNLOW are with these men now, but they did not carry them over. Their partisans always opposed universal suffrage, and they are now opposed to it. BROWNLOW's name, since his apostacy, carries less influence with it in East Tennessee than JOHNSON's. His former friends feel he has betrayed them, and they are bitter and violent in their denunciations. There are some counties in East Tennessee where it is doubtful whether he would be permitted to advocate the "great idea" which he now champions. I have heard in several counties bitter curses against him from men who have stood by him in his fiercest partisan contests. No one suspects him of sincerity or honesty in his new position. The Democrats accept him as an ally, because of their great desire for liberty and release from political bondage, but not because they think he has repented of his past course and is determined to do better. His own party look upon him as a deserter—as a leader who, having secured all his friends could give him, seeks new alliances in the coming dynasty. These may seem prejudiced statements; but they are not. They are true, and cannot be denied.

The discussion between SENTER and STOKES through East Tennessee has thus far attracted but little attention. The people are busy, but most of them feel there is little to be gained by attending. The truth is, the people have been so thoroughly betrayed and imposed upon that they have but little confidence in any of their leaders. Matters can hardly get worse than they are, and they have but little hope of improving them.

The Democrats are suspicious of SENTER, and already demand works and less words. They want the Registers removed and new ones appointed, who will give certificates to all who may apply, or to enough to secure his election. SENTER and his friends, however, are rather staggered at the effect of their somersault, and are debating what course to pursue. BROWNLOW is frightened already. The Whig bolsters up his failing courage, and declares he stands by universal suffrage; but the "unflinching old hero" himself privately says to his friends that he is not in favor of enfranchising the worst rebels, but only wants the plan proposed. It will take several years, he says, to bring it about, and by that time they would have it anyhow.

"Politics makes strange bed-fellows" is certainly true now and here. To see JOHNSON and BROWNLOW at last fighting under the same banner, is suggestive. To see the Knoxville Whig and Rebel Ventilator the pioneer paper in the great reform now proposed, is gratifying. All these things would be gratifying in truth, if one could feel there was any honesty or sincerity in them. But when it is apparent that the whole thing is a brazen-faced bargain and sale by a few desperate political tricksters, it is a fit subject for ridicule and denunciation.

"When thieves fall out honest men get their dues," is likely to prove true in Tennessee. While I cannot hold up SENTER, BROWNLOW & Co. as men deserving any credit for the reform they now urge and propose, I think I can promise that good will result from their schemes and plots, and the State be restored to a true peace and a real prosperity, by restoring to every man within its borders those inalienable rights and privileges without which he is not and cannot be an American citizen. OMEGA.

The Mayor and the Estimates of the Fire Commissioners.

The Mayor's Chief Clerk, Mr. CHAS. O. JOLINE, has forwarded a communication to the Board of Fire Commissioners, giving His Honor's reasons for declining to attend a meeting of the Board of Estimate for that body.

The communication says: "The Board of Fire Commissioners is a legislatively appointed commission, and it solely expends its moneys, it solely audits its own bills, and the law of its existence provides money without the necessity of applying for "legislative log-rolling" or "legislative slight-of-hand-main." It is clear, therefore, that the Commissioners ought, in fairness, to take, as the Comptroller and Mayor ought in consistency to concede, the right to solely determine what the Board wants to spend. It is true that the law makes the Comptroller and the Mayor members of the Board of Estimate. Their attendance, however, is not necessary to make a quorum. They might be ever so much opposed to what the Commissioners wish; nevertheless, the latter would have the power to overrule them. Therefore, the Board can lose nothing by their absence. The declination is neither disrespectful nor supercilious. It was certainly very kind of the Legislature to give the local authorities the onus of sharing in the responsibility of raising money which they were neither to audit nor to spend, after it was raised, and then to deny them any voice in the discipline or government of the Fire Board or to its doings."

Mr. JOLINE concludes his letter by entering at some length into the questions of State Commissions, "whose action," he thinks, "is defective, not so much by reason that they are independent of the City authorities, as that each is independent of the other."

The Comptroller, it is understood, takes the same view of the question as the Mayor.

POLITICAL MOVEMENTS OF THE RING

The Daniels who are Coming to Judgment—Candidates for Judges at the Fall Election—What Kind of a Dish the Ring are Going to Set Before us.

That select coterie of Democratic politicians and office-holders, known as the "Ring," whose self-sacrificing devotion to the public weal long since constrained them to take upon themselves, unasked, the task of administering the affairs of this Metropolis, and of designating the men whom the people may have the privilege of electing to places of trust and power under our City and County Government, are beginning to busy themselves about the aspects and prospects of the Fall campaign, and to discuss the respective claims of the multitude of candidates for the various offices, who aspire to gain the favor of the "Ring" and thereby secure the nomination of Tammany Hall. They are assisted in this arduous and patriotic duty by another class, less select but more numerous, composed of the ward and pot-house politicians—the roughs, strikers and repeaters—who execute the decrees of the "Ring" at the polls on election day, and who may now be seen lounging about the City Hall, sitting on the chains in the Park, or blocking up the avenues to the Court of Sessions. While the first class, the oligarchs of the "Ring," congregate daily at the private lunch-parlor of the Astor to discuss the situation and prepare the "slate" in a quiet, aristocratic way, over a glass of toddy and a ham sandwich—price $1—the other class of our rulers who represent the Democratic element, distribute themselves among the less pretentious grogeries of Centre-street and Tryon-row, where they carry on the discussion in a more rambling, boisterous manner over a similar bill of fare—price 10 cents. Both classes, however, are equally useful and equally potent in their respective spheres, and both have the same patriotic end in view—the judicious distribution of the spoils of office among themselves and their friends. As to the great body of our citizens, the voters and taxpayers who supply the grease for the wheels of Government, and furnish the spoils on which the political highwaymen and their train of lazzaroni fatten, their duty is plain and simple: they have only to keep quiet and await the action of their masters, accept the ticket that is set before them on election day, vote it "straight," and go home about their business. This is what they are accustomed to do, and is the only thing they can do. They could not help themselves if they would, and it does not appear that they would help themselves if they could.

"What do we care," said a high priest of the "Ring" the other day, "what do we care whether the people like our nominations or not? What difference does it make to us what the newspapers—the TIMES, Tribune and Herald say about it? Why, in the first place, there is at least one-third of the voters of this city, who never read a paper printed in the English language. Then there is half of another third who never read any paper—in fact can't read at all. Then, there is one-half of the voters who are beyond the reach of the leading newspapers, and as to the other half, there is always a sufficient number who will vote the straight party candidates, whoever they may be, to carry any ticket we may put in the field. The only danger we have is from a split in our own ranks, owing to the difficulty of satisfying all our friends in the distribution of offices. But there is not much fear of that now; the Tammany organization is so complete and thorough that a bolt is dangerous; we can crush out the future prospects of any man who attempts it."

Thus it would seem to be useless for the people or the Press, or even for disaffected members of the dominant party, to attempt to upset the present order of things. The supremacy of the Tammany Ring is established, and those who don't like it can "jump it," as the saying is. Still the public has the privilege, accorded under all forms of oligarchy, to grumble at their rulers, (in a quiet way,) and the Press can still record the decrees of the "Ring" if it cannot influence its counsels. It is only in pursuance of this inalienable right that our reporter has taken the trouble to ascertain, as far as practicable, what is to be the Tammany programme for the Fall elections, in order that the English-reading public may get some inkling, in advance, of the kind of dish that is to be set before them in November, and which they are expected to swallow without wincing, while they shout, "Long live the Ring!"

THE JUDICIARY.

The most interesting feature of the Fall election in this City is the excellent opportunity it will afford for illustrating our beautiful system of an elective judiciary. There is an unusually large number of positions to be filled on the Bench of our State and City Courts, and in view of the somewhat startling developments of the past year with regard to the manner in which justice is administered in this Metropolis, and the peculiar notoriety which some of our Judges have succeeded in achieving for themselves, there is considerable anxiety felt in the public mind both here and elsewhere as to what kind of men will be put forward by the Ring to fill these important positions. The following is a list of the vacancies on the Bench to be filled at the November election:

Supreme Court—One Justice to be elected for six years in place of Judge CLERKE, whose time expires.

Superior Court—Two Justices to be elected for six years in place of Judges MCCUNN and FRIEDMAN, whose terms expire, and one Justice for two years in place of Judge FITHIAN, who was appointed in place of Judge ROBERTSON, deceased.

Common Pleas Court—One Judge to be elected for six years in place of Judge BARRETT, whose term expires.

Marine Court—One Judge for six years in place of Judge GROSS, whose term expires.

Court of Sessions—A Recorder for six years, in place of Recorder HACKETT, whose term expires. (By an act of the Legislature passed last Winter, the Recorder's and City Judge's term of office is hereafter to be six years instead of three.)

Surrogate—One Surrogate for six years, in place of GIDEON J. TUCKER, whose term expires. (The term of this office was also extended to six years by the same act.)

Civil Justices' Courts.—Nine Civil Justices, to fill the places of Justices QUINN, of the First District; DEVLIN, of the Second; SMITH, of the Third; GALE, of the Fourth; LOEW, of the Fifth; LANE, of the Sixth; STEMLER, of the Seventh; BULL, of the Eighth; and a new district called the Ninth, created by act of the Legislature.

Police Justices Courts.—Nine Police Justices, to fill the places of Justices DOWLING, HOGAN, DODGE, LEDWITH, MANSFIELD, SHANDLEY, KELLEY, and CONNOLLY, and a new district to be called the Ninth.

Thus it will be seen there are twenty-six Judges to be elected next Fall to fill positions in all the Courts, from the highest to the lowest. The Tammany candidates are to receive their nominations from the same secret, scheming, irresponsible political conclave that selects our Aldermen and Assistant Aldermen, and parcels out to their faithful followers every place and position, large and small, from Chief Magistracy of the City down to the janitor of the new Court-house and the women who scrub the floors of the public offices. They must all be party men, of course, for since the time when the elective judiciary first went into operation and the Democratic Party refused the offer of the Whigs to go into joint convention and nominate Judges irrespective of party, the judiciary has been subject to the same political influences that control all other nominations. The result has been that there are to-day only two judicial positions in the City occupied by Republicans, one being that of Judge FITHIAN, who was appointed by Governor FENTON to fill a vacancy in the Superior Court until the next election, and the other that of Police Justice KELLY. The forthcoming Judges must, therefore, be not only party men, but Tammany men, and Tammany and the Ring will alone be responsible for them.

THE SUPREME COURT.

With regard to the Judge of the Supreme Court it has already been decided by the Ring that Judge CLERKE shall not get the nomination. He has proved himself too honest and upright as a Judge, too lukewarm as a politician, and too refractory as an instrument in the hands of the Ring. If there had been nothing else against him, the fact that he has been earnestly requested in a public card signed by the leading members of the Bar and by a host of our most worthy citizens to be a candidate for re-election, was sufficient to destroy his chances with the Tammany Ring, and he was at once thrown overboard. There are numerous candidates for his place—some even among our civil justices are said to aspire to the position—but the coming man has not yet been fully decided upon. Recorder HACKETT has been named in several quarters and strenuously urged in others, but he says he had rather be Recorder of this City than Governor of the State, and as the term of office has now been extended to six years he prefers to remain where he is, and if his wishes are consulted, he will be renominated to his present position. Judge GARVIN, who left the Superior Court Bench to take OAKEY HALL'S place as District-Attorney for the county has also been named, but he prefers to remain where he is, and where he can have deputies to do his work, rather than go to the Supreme Court Bench where he would have to do the work himself. Besides, PETER B. SWEENY is his friend, and as PETER reserves the right to have the first selection among the offices, and, in the present juncture of affairs, deems the office of prosecuting attorney the most important for protecting the friends and punishing the enemies of the Democratic Party, he has chosen this, and will doubtless see to it that his friends, wishes are respected. Ex-Judge LEONARD and Jas. R. COLEMAN, the friend and referee of Judge BARNARD, are also spoken of for Judge CLERKE'S place, but, as before stated, the nominee has not yet been definitely agreed upon, and probably will not be until the return of PETER the Great from a visit to his ancestral dominions in Europe.

THE SUPERIOR COURT.

For the Superior Court it has been decided that Judge MCCUNN shall be renominated at all events. He is on good terms with Tammany and with everybody else, and his name was placed unchallenged at the head of the slate. Notwithstanding his party affiliations and his free and easy ways off the Bench, he has won a good reputation for impartiality as a Judge, and is popular alike with lawyers and clients. He writes good opinions and boasts that (whether from good law or good luck) his decisions have been less frequently reversed than those of any other Judge on the Superior Court Bench. For the other two positions in this Court, now occupied by Judges FREEDMAN and FITHIAN, there are candidates without number. Among them are WM. E. CURTIS, formerly President of the Board of Education; Judge LEDWITH, present Police Justice; GEO. SHAY, Civil Justice QUINN, of the First District; JAS. H. COLEMAN and Judge LEONARD. Mr. CURTIS is probably the best man named for the place, but this is a pretty good reason why he will not get it. Judge FREEDMAN is also a candidate for re-election, and will be strongly pushed by a portion of the German element; but since his term has been on the Bench he has not displayed that aptness and promptitude for judicial functions which the profession demands, or which is likely to reflect great credit on the Teutonic element of the Democracy.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

The Court of Common Pleas is a goal toward which a large array of legal ambition is aspiring, and the candidates for Judge BARRETT'S place are legion. This Court has long been known as the "Irish Court," and it is the highest compliment to the nationality of those who have generally occupied its Bench that it has now come to be regarded by the Bar and by the public who know anything about the judiciary of this City, as the ablest Court in New-York, and one of the few whose Judges, one and all, are above suspicion as regards their personal and judicial integrity. It is to be regretted that Judge BARRETT, the youngest member of the Court, who has so rapidly won upon the respect and esteem of the profession during the short year he has been upon the Bench as to be ranked a fit associate and peer of DALY and BRADY, should deem it necessary for his private interests to decline a renomination and retire from the Bench. This step, however, he has peremptorily decided upon, and it is now useless to expect that the "Ring" will let slip the opportunity to bring the old Common Pleas under subjection, as they have all the other Courts. Chief among the candidates who are named for Judge BARRETT'S place are WM. M. TWEED, Jr., son of Supervisor-Senator-Deputy-Street-Commissioner TWEED, the great wire-puller of Tammany, and First Lieutenant of the "Ring;" FREDERICK E. LOEW, Civil Justice of the Fourth District; FREDERICK SMYTHE, law partner of JOHN MCKEON; JOHN FOWLER and several others. It is said that TWEED, Jr., declares he does not want the position, but prefers the post of General Receiver and Referee under Judge BARNARD, which pays at least a thousand per cent. better. Then, on the other hand, it is said he aspires to the Recordership, and in case HACKETT could be induced to go on to the Supreme Court Bench, would like to dispense criminal justice to the Tammany strikers who might come before him. It appears to be settled that he is to have some judicial position—the title of "Judge" being considered just now a necessary appendage to the TWEED family. Other candidates will doubtless spring up as the canvass progresses, and the Court of Common Pleas may be honored with another Cardozo, who will condescend to make it the stepping-stone to the more congenial atmosphere of the Supreme Court.

MARINE COURT.

For the Marine Court it is thought that Judge GROSS will succeed in getting a renomination, although there are a large number of competitors for the place.

SURROGATE'S COURT.

The "Ring" has resolved to have a change in the Surrogate's Court, and our friend GIDEON J. TUCKER has been peremptorily ordered to retire. He is to be succeeded by ROBERT HUTCHINGS, present Assistant District-Attorney. This has been positively decided upon, very much to the chagrin of the present incumbent of the Surrogate's Office, who has at one time threatened to run as an independent candidate and smash the Ring, and at another meditates revenging himself by returning to his old vocation of journalism and starting a new Democratic paper at the State capital, in which he can expose the corruptions of the clique who have thrown him overboard. All his friends, including those who have had business at the Surrogate's Office, say that is the best thing he can do.

With regard to the candidates for the other judicial positions above named, they are innumerable, and of every degree of ability and character. Indeed, there is hardly a clerk in any of the departments of the City Government who does not aspire to be either a civil or criminal justice, and who is not pulling all the wires within his reach to secure a nomination for one or the other. Even some of their names even would require more space than we can command at present, and a discussion of their claims and fitness for office must be deferred to another time.

Meeting of the Society of Commercial Travelers—Effort to Obtain a Repeal of the License Laws.

A meeting of the Society of Commercial Travelers was held at the Astor House at 3 P. M. yesterday. Mr. FREDERICK STEVENS, President of the Society, occupied the chair, and Mr. WM. G. SMYTHE officiated as Secretary. Reports were presented showing that $4,200 have been received as contributions to the funds of the Society since its last meeting.

The Chairman said that in the case of Mr. WARD, arrested in Baltimore for selling goods without a license, Mr. WARD had been fined $400 and costs. That gentleman had deposited $600 in the hands of a friend to await the final decision of the case, but so soon as the magistrate's decision had been rendered the officers of the Court seized on Mr. WARD'S deposit. The Society had, therefore, undertaken to replace the money. The case had been carried to the Court of Errors, and if the decision was adverse to Mr. WARD it would be carried to the Supreme Court of the United States. A final decision might be expected in the Fall.

Mr. J. C. MOORE, a member of the Merchants' and Commercial Travelers' Association of Chicago, reported that the Association is in a flourishing condition; also, that sixty-four towns and villages in the Northwest, including Chicago, St. Louis and Cincinnati have repealed their License laws. Omaha and St. Paul still refuse to repeal the laws, but the Association is working on them through the Press, and hope soon to repeal them among the cities where trade and commerce are important. That the Press was due entirely the success the Association had already achieved. Mr. MOORE then referred to the freedom of trade in Europe, and advocated immediate and united action here in obtaining a repeal of all laws tending to restrict the operations of business men.

Mr. STEVENS, the Chairman, said the absurdity of these License laws was well illustrated by the fact that no commercial travelers now visit Providence, R. I. They have all been driven away, and merchants there have to come to New-York to obtain the prices of goods.

On motion, a committee was appointed to wait on the Corporation Counsel to ascertain whether the laws forbidding commercial travelers to sell goods in other States are constitutional. Messrs. BURKE, LEVY and HURD were appointed as such committee.

On motion of Mr. FOGARTY a committee of three on permanent organization was appointed, and the following gentlemen were made members of the Committee: Messrs. FOGARTY, BURKE and HURD.

Mr. LEVY spoke of the importance of obtaining the cooperation of merchants. He thought it was as much to the interest of merchants as of commercial travelers to obtain a repeal of the License laws.

The meeting then adjourned subject to call.

The Children's Aid Society.

During the month of May the Children's Aid Society procured homes and employment for 354 persons, 274 of whom were boys, 60 girls, 10 men and 8 women. At the nineteen industrial schools the average attendance was 2,060. The following is the report of the lodging-houses for the same time:

Pickering, Lyman, Burroughs, Stearns, Price, Otis and Darling. Also several other races. The following prominent experts are expected to be present: Fred Hanlon, Professor Abner S. Brady, Walter Brown, Wm. E. Harding, Messinger, and many others. Also, the members of the American Velocipede Club, the American Bicycle Club, the Ivanhoe and Brooklyn Velocipede Clubs. Pools will be sold at the New-York Velocipede Academy, Nos. 159 and 161 Crosby-street, on Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

The New Up-Town Market.

The new market erected in Forty-second-street, between Fourth and Lexington avenues, will be opened to the public on Saturday next. One feature connected with the establishment of this market is quite novel, and as such is worthy of mention. The occupants of the stalls will collectively employ agents to travel on board the morning trains of the Harlem and New-Haven Railroads, take orders from gentlemen residing in the suburban villages, and then send the articles ordered home by the first return train, without giving the purchasers any further trouble in the matter. The fixtures of the new market are of black walnut and ash in alternate strips, and present a very handsome appearance.

POLICE TRIALS.

Human Nature vs. Police Discipline—A Glass of Lager, and What Came of It.

Seventeen complaints against patrolmen were investigated by Commissioner MANIERRE yesterday. Among interested spectators of the trials were Senators CHAPMAN and KENNEDY.

THREATENED TO SHOOT, AND THOUGHT BETTER OF IT.

Mrs. MARY A. DUNHAM, a lady considerably advanced in life, charged Patrolman WILLIAM REED, of the Forty-sixth Precinct, with improper conduct. She testified that at about 6:30 o'clock on the evening of the 16th instant the officer came toward her premises, corner of Devoe-street and Bushwick-avenue, Brooklyn; she forbade his entering. At the same time witness shut the door, and bolted it. The officer swore he would burst in the door, which he did with such violence as to throw the staple nearly across the room. He was in his shirt-sleeves, and swore he would blow her son SAMUEL'S brains out, and applied to him a vile epithet. No one but the officer and herself were in the room at the time. She did not see any pistol in the possession of the officer.

Officer REED, being sworn on his own behalf, deposed that he hired premises of complainant, the dwelling which his family occupied being on the street, and Mrs. DUNHAM living in the house on the rear of the same lot. The two families had occupied these premises for more than a year, and until quite recently their relations had been very neighborly and pleasant. The officer found that his daughter, 17 years of age, had been seduced by Mrs. DUNHAM'S son SAMUEL. The officer had extorted from SAMUEL, under the threat that otherwise he would shoot him, the promise that he would do "what was right" by the girl, i. e., marry her, but he begged for a few days' time to make preparation. The promise was given on the 21st of May. Instead of keeping it, SAMUEL concealed himself in New-York. On the evening when he is charged with improper conduct, the father, on coming home to his tea, was told that SAMUEL had returned, and was then in Mrs. DUNHAM'S apartments. "I was so excited," continued defendant, "that I must say I was not sane—I was completely wild. I went out of my back basement. Mrs. DUNHAM stood at her door, which was open. I said, where is your son? She said don't you come in here. I said I will, and stepped into the house. I applied no epithet to her. I said where is that confounded renegade loafer and thief? She said he was no thief. I said he is a thief, for he has robbed me of all that is near and dear to me. I did not break in the door. It was not shut at the time.

Q.—Did you make a threat that you would shoot her son? A.—My intention was if I had come across him to have done it. I said I would. My wife came and pulled me back, and I altered my mind afterward.

As the officer is not believed to have used any actual violence, and applied no ill-language except toward one against whom his feelings were naturally raised to a pitch of frenzy, it is probable that the complaint will be dismissed. This was the recommendation marked on the papers by Mr. MANIERRE.

CORRIGAN'S CASE.

Patrolman ROBERT CORRIGAN, of the Second Precinct, was charged with conducting himself in a disorderly manner one night, about 12 o'clock, at the Atlantic Garden, Bowery. Councilman STACOM and the manager of the garden testified to this effect, and Captain JOURDAN and Sergeant KENNEDY deposed that a few minutes subsequently CORRIGAN appeared at the Sixth Precinct Station-house under the influence of liquor, and conducted himself in an unofficerlike manner. Defendant said that he drank but one glass of lager. Case referred to the Board.

University Grammar School.

The University Grammar School of this City held its annual exhibition yesterday in the chapel of the building. Chancellor FERRIS, capped and gowned, was in the chair, and on the platform were Dr. DAVID BEUDAN and Mr. THEODORE COLEMAN, Superintendents of the school, together with Professor MORGAN L. BLOOM, teacher of elocution, who had prepared the pupils in the exercises of the occasion. Noticeable among these were recitations of "The Revelers," by A. BRAILLY; "Richard Cœur de Lion at the Bier of his Father," by H. C. BENNER; "The Old Clock on the Stairs," by E. KIRTLAND; "The Mantle of St. John of Malta," by R. G. REMSEN; SCHILLER'S "Diver" and "Battle," severally, by A. R. THOMPSON and CHARLES C. BULL; and BYRON'S "Oscar of Alva," by C. B. ROGERS. A. R. THOMPSON and C. C. BULL were also much applauded in the trial scene from the "Merchant of Venice," the former personating Shylock and the latter Portia. "Der Handschuh," (The Glove,) by SCHILLER, was recited by G. JACOBUS, and "Le Chêne et le Sycamore," (The Oak and the Sycamore,) was well given by WM. L. CHAMBERLIN. The French dialogue from SCRIBE, "Mon Etoile," was also spoken by J. L. BROWN, Jr. and F. HUESMAN. A comic scene from the "Midsummer Night's Dream" was likewise presented, together with several other pieces. Grafulla's Band interspersed the proceedings with lively airs. The prizes awarded by the Chancellor at the close were as follows: FRABUL BARKSDALE, for proficiency and exemplary conduct; JAMES A. HENWICK, for drawing; THOMAS M. BERLENBACH, FRANCIS HUESMANN, Z. BROKAW and J. E. BULL, for penmanship; FRANCIS HUESMANN and E. SCOTT, for French; FRANCIS HUESMANN and FRANK CROWELL, for arithmetic, algebra and geometry; HARRY B. HOLLINS, for arithmetic; CHARLES C. BULL, for Greek; J. L. BULL, for Latin, and E. SCOTT, for both Latin and Greek. The prize of declamation was awarded to EDWARD M. KIRTLAND by a committee at the close of the exercises, who also honorably mentioned C. C. BULL and C. B. ROGERS for their ability in recitation. A number of pupils were honorably mentioned in all the departments. A large company attended, principally ladies, and much pleasure was experienced from the entertainment. The school will be reopened Monday, 13th September.

Board of Excise.

The Metropolitan Board of Excise met yesterday afternoon. Commissioner HENRY SMITH, the newly-elected President, occupied the chair.

The minutes of a private session held on Monday last, were read, by which it appeared that at that time the sum of $1,000 was appropriated to Commissioner BOSWORTH for extra services, rendered as President of the Board.

Mr. BOSWORTH arose, after the minutes had been read, and offered a very lengthy written opinion which maintained the illegality of this action of the Board. The law, he said, authorized the Board of Health to pay its officers for extra work, but the Board of Excise had no authority to do so with its officers. He, therefore, moved to reconsider the motion by which the appropriation was passed. The subject was tabled, to be considered in secret session.

Three complaints against liquor dealers for violation of the law were disposed of, as follows: NICHOLAS KIRCHOFFER, No. 7 Jackson-street, license revoked; JACOB HARENSSER, No. 21 Chrystie-street, adjourned; MICHAEL FEELY, No. 29 State-street, Brooklyn, revoked.

On recommendation of the Committee on Applications, 625 new licenses were granted—458 for this City, 130 for Brooklyn, and 37 for Staten Island.

The Board then adjourned for one week.

Collision in the Bay.

On the passage of the Neresink from Port Monmouth, yesterday at midday, during the dense fog in the Bay, a large steamer, the Albemarle, struck her on the starboard bow, fortunately, however, doing her no serious injury. At the time of the accident a number of passengers, both ladies and gentlemen, were on board. Had it not been for the providential discovery of the approaching vessel, and the prompt action of the crews on board of both, a terrible collision, fraught with the direst results, might have taken place.

Daring Larceny of Money.

An unknown man entered the furniture store of FREEE & EPPEL, at No. 916 Broadway, when he engrossed the attention of the salesman, while his confederate, JOSEPH REEVES, walked to the rear of the store and succeeded in stealing $1,536 93 in money and checks from a desk drawer in the office. Fortunately for the owners the salesman suspected him as he was about to leave the store, when he caused JOSEPH'S arrest by Officer PELLET, of the Broadway squad, who found all the plunder on his person. The prisoner was locked up at Police Headquarters for examination. The "coverer" escaped in the confusion.

The Stock Exchange Committee on the Official list of Stocks and other securities authorized to be regularly dealt in at the Board have reported in favor of the 6 ℘ cent. Gold-bearing Mortgage Bonds of the Central Pacific Railroad Company. Present issue, $15,245,000.

The return from the Bank of England for the week ended the 9th of June gives the following results when compared with the previous week:

Rest	£3,131,565	Decrease.. £5,979
Public deposits	6,949,901	Increase.. 884,937
Other deposits	17,169,319	Increase.. 65,031

The amount of notes in circulation is £22,842,485, being a decrease of £682,060; and the stock of bullion in both departments is £18,630,883, showing an increase of £809,980 when compared with the preceding return. The reserve now stands at a point higher than has been previously touched this year, and the bullion is almost at the highest. Subjoined is a comparison of the present position of the Bank of England and the prices of Consols and French Rentes with the corresponding week of last year:

	At Present.	Last year.

The London Times of June 10 says:

"The Bank of England have to-day reduced their rate of discount from 4½ ℘ cent., at which it was fixed on the 8th ult., to 4 ℘ cent. At the same time the joint stock and private banks and discount establishments have made a corresponding alteration in their terms for money on deposit and call. The banks now allow only 3 ℘ cent. on deposits, while the rates of the discount houses are 3 ℘ cent. for money at call, 3¼ at seven days' notice, and 3½ at fourteen days' notice.

The Bank return published this evening tends to strengthen the belief that a further lowering of the rate, when the payment of the dividends shall have commenced, may be considered probable. In the four weeks since the 12th of May there has been a recovery of £2,067,494 in the bullion, and £2,844,979 in the reserve."

Are We Growing Poor?

From the New-York Tribune, June 23.

The clamor that the country is being impoverished by the tariff, or by reason of the burden of our national debt, is at war with facts very notorious and palpable. The debt is a burden, as debt is apt to be, but we are bearing it nobly. We have not only largely reduced our national debt since our volunteers were mustered out of service, but we have wiped out millions on millions of State, county, city, township and other debts incurred in raising, arming and equipping soldiers to fight for the Union. Thus we see that Indiana has reduced her State debt from $7,000,000 to $1,500,000; and nearly every State can show a decided reduction, if not quite so decided as that of Indiana.

Every one can see that we are erecting or renovating houses and other valuable structures, constructing railroads, improving lands, opening farms, &c., &c., all over the country. We are confident that many more miles of new railroad were opened in the last than in any previous year. Evidences of progress and thrift abound on every side; he must be blind indeed who does not see them. But, since there are those who pretend that the national wealth no longer increases, we have, at some cost, collected the statistics of the income tax assessed in our City for the years 1867 and 1868 respectively. The aggregates are as follows:

Table showing the total number of persons paying income tax, the total amount of taxable income, and the amount of taxes assessed in the Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth and Thirty-second Districts, being the entire City of New-York, for the years 1867 and 1868.

Dists.	1867. No. of income tax-payers.	1867. Total amt. of taxable income.	1867. Total amt. of tax.
Fourth	884	$2,062,104	$103,105
Fifth	1,302	1,934,195	96,709
Sixth	4,585	15,485,980	774,299
Seventh	2,214	4,476,481	223,824
Eighth	5,530	35,215,723	1,760,786
Ninth	2,721	8,338,057	416,902
Thirty-second	194	333,342	16,667
Total	17,430	$68,045,862	$3,402,282

Dists.	1868. No. of income tax-payers.	1868. Total amt. of taxable income.	1868. Total amt. of tax.
Fourth	767	$2,048,267	$102,413
Fifth	1,225	1,846,389	92,319
Sixth	4,240	17,637,831	981,771
Seventh	2,076	3,896,867	194,843
Eighth	5,045	47,256,115	2,364,205
Ninth	3,428	12,041,872	602,093
Thirty-second	222	840,418	42,020
Total	18,030	$85,597,484	$4,379,754
Increase of income tax-payers			600
Increase of incomes assessed			$17,541,622
Increase of aggregate income tax			$977,471

Or nearly 30 per cent.

When we consider that wealth tends steadily away from the City—that is, a larger and larger proportion of our capitalists and business men reside outside and are assessed outside of our City's limits—it must be felt that this exhibit is satisfactory, and utterly inconsistent with the absurd notion that the country is growing poor.

The San Island Cotton Crop.

Correspondence of the Savannah News.

LADY'S ISLAND, S. C., Saturday, June 12.

With regard to the crops upon this and adjacent islands, I am happy to report favorably on the whole, and according to present appearances the planters, great and small, look forward hopefully to a rich and bounteous harvest. The unusual coldness of the Spring months, and consequent lateness of the planting season, together with the drought during the first part of April, followed by discouraging high winds which prevailed up to the middle of May, tended to throw a damper upon the more sanguine who planted largely in cotton. The violent storms of Spring were succeeded by glorious warm sunshine, which gave new impetus to the plant, until at the present writing all are agreeably surprised to behold a "good stand," requiring only proper care and working to bring it forward. For the past few weeks a drought has steadily continued; ponds which have for years been kept supplied by rains are almost dry: the crops in general suffered for rain, more especially corn and vegetables, which on high lands have been scorched severely, and to a great extent, as far as I have observed. The spell was broken a few days since, and now every afternoon the welcome thunder shower comes teeming upon the parched fields, causing the plants to nod diffidently for the refreshing boon, and to sparkle with the brilliancy of myriads of diamonds upon the bosom of mother earth.

Rain and the Crops in the South.

From the Savannah Republican, June 18.

Our exchanges from all parts of Georgia, Florida and Alabama report refreshing rains within the last ten days, and give cheering accounts of the crops of all kinds. Cotton is small for the period, but is flourishing, and without disaster in the Fall will produce a fair crop for the ground planted. We enter upon the Summer with abundant supplies of small grain for man and beast, and there is enough corn growing, should it turn out reasonably well, to make our supplies ample. Above all things we wish to see our people produce their own bread and meat, in that regard at least becoming independent. One year's experience of exemption from this heavy draft from abroad, we feel sure, will effectually cure them of the folly of making cotton to buy bread and bacon and horses and mules.

LUMBER—The demand has been fair, and prices have been quoted steady. In Albany, according to the Argus, "there has been a fair business throughout the district since our last report. The receipts by Canal have been good, when we take into consideration the shortage of logs at the mills in Michigan and Canada, by which it is estimated that at least four to six weeks' sawing was lost early in the season. In the opinion of some receivers, this will materially affect the Spring business, but others think that the receipts, though late, will be full as large as those of 1868. There was a fair sprinkling of buyers in the district to-day; but the light stocks and an indifferent assortment checks business. The demand for New-York City is very slack and the South and East are but moderate purchasers. The receipts at Albany for the week ending June 18, were 22,369,00 feet against 33,168,800 feet for the corresponding week last year. The shipments for the week, 19,486,000 feet against 17,790,000 feet for the corresponding week in 1868. The aggregate receipts since Jan. 1, are 260,690,000 feet, against 303,676,000 feet in 1868. The aggregate shipments since Jan. 1, 256,128,000 feet against 211,222,000 in 1868. The following figures give the reported receipts at Buffalo and Oswego for the week ending June 21, 1869 and 1868:

	1869.	1868.
Buffalo	3,644,100 feet.	8,565,900 feet.
Oswego	10,435,800 feet.	11,495,400 feet.
Total	14,079,900 feet.	20,061,300 feet.

The receipts at Albany by the Erie and Champlain Canals for the third week of June were:

	Bds. and Scantling, feet.	Shingles, M.	Timber, c. feet.	Staves, lbs.
1869	21,794,000	2,296	.....	680,000
1868	21,441,300	3,557	.....	1,810,000

Of the Boards and Scantling received, 12,966,200 feet were by the Erie, and 8,827,800 feet by the Champlain Canal. The receipts at Albany by the Erie and Champlain Canals from the opening of navigation to June 23 were:

	Bds. and Scantling, feet.	Shingles, M.	Timber, c. feet.	Staves, lbs.
1869	93,780,000	9,820	.....	1,446,000
1868	105,064,000	11,135	41,973	9,712,100

The receipts of 1868 include some 11,000,000 feet of Boards and Scantling detained on the canal during the Spring months by the high freshets. We quote lumbers in good supply: To New-York ℘ M., $1 50; to Bridgeport and New-Haven, $2 25; to Norwich and Middletown, $2 50; to Providence and Providence, $3; to Philadelphia, $3 25; to Baltimore, $4 50; to Boston, soft wood, $4; to Boston, hard wood, $5.

MOLASSES—The demand has been quite moderate to-day within our former range of prices. We quote: Old and New Porto Rico at 40c.@39c., Cuba at 35c.@ 75c., New-Orleans at 70c.@85c. ℘ gallon. And in detail thus:

	Old Crop.	New Crop.
Cuba Centrifugal and Mixed, ℘ gallon	35c.@38c.	38c.@42c.
Cuba Clayed, ℘ gallon	37c.@42c.	50c.@53c.
Cuba Muscovado, refining grades, ℘ gallon	—@—	51c.@54c.
Cuba Muscovado, grocery grades, ℘ gallon	—@—	55c.@65c.
Porto Rico, ℘ gallon	—@—	59c.@70c.
English Islands, ℘ gallon	—@—	50c.@70c.
New-Orleans, ℘ gallon	—@—	70c.@85c.

NAVAL STORES—There has been less pressure to sell Spirits Turpentine, which has been quoted rather firmer, on the basis of 43½c. for merchantable lots, ℘ gallon. The demand has been moderate, and about 370 bbls. have been reported sold, in lots, at the quoted rates. Nothing really new in Crude Turpentine, or in Tar. Resin has been in fair supply and heavy, on restricted inquiry. Sales have been reported of 1,450 bbls. Strained at $2 30@$2 35; 160 bbls. No. 2 at $2 55@$2 62½, and 380 bbls. No. 1 to Pale at $3@$3 10. Crude receipts have been confined to 7 bbls.; the export clearances include 3,070 bbls., by the bark Liverpool, for Trieste, and 880 bbls. by the ship Ryerson, for London. We quote: Spirits Turpentine in bbls., 43½c.@43¾c.; Rosin at $6 87½@$6 90; Resin at $2 30@$10 50 ℘ 280 lbs., the latter rate for choice White; Tar at $2 50@$3 20; Pitch at $2 75 ℘ bbl.

OILS—Have been rather more sought after at buoyant prices, including Crude Whale at $1 03 @$1 05; Bleached Whale at $1 24@$1 15; Crude Sperm at $1 90@$1 95; Unbleached Sperm at $1 95@$2; Lard Oil at $1 45@$1 50; Red Oil at 90c. @95c.; Linseed Oil at $1 01@$1 04, in casks and barrels; Menhaden, 75c.@80c.; Olive at $1 45@$1 50 ℘ gallon.

PETROLEUM—There has been a much stronger feeling discernible in the market to-day, with very moderate offerings of Oil reported. The demand, however, though fair, partly for export, has not been remarkably active, and refiners and buyers have been unable to operate freely on the basis of the advanced prices claimed by holders. Crude in bulk has been quoted up to 16c.@16¾c., closing at 16¼c.@16½c. ℘ gallon, with sales reported of some 1,600 bbls., all told. Barreled Crude has been in demand and quoted firm, on the basis of 22½c. ℘ gallon. There have been no receipts of Crude reported here, 980 bbls. arrived at Philadelphia. Empty barrels for Crude Oil have been quoted steady at about $2 20 each. There have been no export clearances reported. Refined has been advanced sharply in both this city and Philadelphia markets, influenced, in part, by the advantageous advices of a rise in that market to 40, A good, though not particularly urgent, inquiry has been reported here for Standard White, which closes buoyantly,

It is alleged that he was connected in the robberies as a receiver of the stolen property. The defendants expect to prove an alibi.

The Metropolitan Board of Health held a meeting yesterday afternoon. The Sanitary Superintendent reported the condition of the public health in this and other large cities of the United States to be very good. Thirty persons, it was stated, have been saved from drowning, by these means, within the last nine months. Complaints were made of the filthy condition of various public streets, one of which, —a certain part of the Sixth-avenue—it was alleged, had not been cleaned during the past four years. The Cuban Cause.

Were it laid down, among President GRANT'S official duties, to satisfy the Democratic Press, or even that refined part of it which used to call him, by way of argument, drunkard and dolt, his would be a pitiable position. But we presume he does not regard this task as incumbent upon him. The other day he was rated for taking no measures to prevent Cuban sympathizers from breaking the laws; now he is abused by the same consistent critics for taking such measures. Of course no mere party purpose is designed to be subserved by such comment—its very style shows that.

Meanwhile, it is remarkable that the Spanish Government, the Spanish authorities in Cuba, and the Spanish representatives in this country, have, like the Cuban patriots and most of the Cuban sympathizers, been tolerably well satisfied with the course of our Government. Indeed, it is doubtful whether a Government placed in a dilemma so perplexing ever acquitted itself more acceptably to both of the parties to be affected by its action. Its position is obvious. On the one hand, our people unquestionably sympathize, and sympathize very heartily, with the Cuban patriots. Their cause is very nearly what ours was in the "War of Independence," and whether they achieve success or not does not alter the fact. It is unquestionable also that the amount of oppression, extortion and tyranny which Cuba has endured from Spain is greater proportionally than that endured by the American Colonies from Great Britain. Besides, it has come to be a part of our general American creed, that colonies in North America should be held subject to European Governments no longer than their own interests and wishes dictate—a doctrine which the London Times has announced and defended regarding Canada with as much vigor as any of us could maintain it regarding Cuba.

On the other hand, while sympathy has pointed one way, duty, under international and municipal law, has hitherto pointed another. We have not made a complaint against the British Government to neutralize it now by analogous misconduct of our own. Our Neutrality laws will be enforced, and our Government will not stumble into the same pit in which, apparently, Great Britain was entrapped. If hereafter, as is quite possible, the condition of Cuba and the position of CESPEDES justify us in recognising the patriot Government, no one can accuse us of that indecorous and injurious haste which England manifested regarding the South in 1861.

Thus it has happened that popular sympathy has gone one way, and governmental action the other—and yet not only our own people but both the contending parties have been in the main satisfied. The Spaniards cannot complain of the sympathy they lack from us, knowing the republican predilections of our people. The Cubans have been perforce content with our sympathy, and have expected governmental interference with unlawful projects. If it be suggested that the laws have been broken, we reply that the infractions thus far, divested of exaggeration, will be found slighter than expected, and, so far as can be seen, unavoidable. To liken them to the Alabama case is simply trivial. To do that, you must show the Spanish Minister's plea and protest marked and long-continued like Mr. ADAMS', against the sailing of some particular unlawful expedition, positive and clear information of which he had put into governmental hands before it sailed. Nothing of that sort, of course, is pretended regarding us.

The Dilemma of the Georgia Obstructives.

The Georgia decision does not please the Democratic newspapers of the State. They find consolation in suggesting methods of frustrating its purpose, and in nerving the majority in the Legislature to an assertion of their extreme rights in the premises. From the scope of the decision, in its relation to office-holding, there is no immediate escape; but the two Houses are reminded that they may rid themselves of the difficulty by enacting that negroes shall not be eligible to local office. As to the bearing of the judgment upon the admission of colored members, the political counselors are very emphatic. They insist that the question is disposed of in the present Legislature, and that the next will have the opportunity of doing as it may choose with colored members who present themselves. The prevailing opinion is that nothing should be done implying acquiescence in the decision of the Supreme Court—that those who are averse to the recognition of the negro's eligibility to office or a seat in the Legislature should continue their opposition precisely as though no such decision had been rendered. It is quite evident that the party at whose instance colored members were expelled adhere to their determination to make Georgia what they call "a white man's State." They have learned nothing, and will not yield anything if they can help it.

But the course is not clear. With all their dogged hostility to the negro and his rights, the Georgia Democracy are not wholly forgetful of the possible consequences of the action they suggest. Some of them are daring and defiant; affecting a contempt for consequences, and urging continued opposition to any step in the direction of concession. They imagine that they are temporarily masters of the situation, in the Legislature at least, and they propose to show what they can do, let what may happen afterward. But there are others, who, without attempting to conceal their aversion to the conclusion arrived at by the Court, exhibit to their party the possible inconveniences that may follow further opposition to a principle affirmed by Congress and now shown to be in harmony with the Constitution. These cooler heads suggest that the question has two sides, and that it will be wise to consider all the bearings of an obstructive policy before plunging into it. We are glad to see so influential a journal as the Savannah Republican favoring a moderate course, and stating the pros and cons of the controversy temperately and fairly. So far as we can judge at this distance, however, the calm suggestions of the Republican are for the moment overborne by the fierce partisanship of the Democratic mischief-makers.

Of course the Legislature and white people of Georgia know their own wishes and business best. But we venture to remind them that the occasion is one that calls for more judicious conduct than the Democratic editors generally seem to recommend. It is an occasion which, rightly used, will contribute to the restoration of a proper understanding between the State and the General Government, or which wrongly used, will entail upon the State humiliation and difficulty. There is no longer the slightest pretext for obstruction or even for doubt. The status of the negro under the Constitution and laws of the State is a legal question, and now that it has been decided by the highest local Court, all disputes concerning it should end. It may be that the terms of the decision, strictly interpreted, cover only office-holding proper and do not touch the Legislature. On the other hand, let it be remembered that whatever semblance of right for its procedure that body may have had, it ceases to possess the shadow of an excuse when the points in issue are judicially determined the other way. With the Constitution and the law against them, the majority cannot hope to maintain their present position.

The part of prudence is clear. Instead of pondering plans for evading or breaking down the judgment of the Court, the Georgia Democracy should promptly and frankly accept it as the final settlement of a vexatious question. The dilemma has its mortification, no doubt, but the only satisfactory escape lies through an acknowledgment of the political equality of black and white, in respect of eligibility to office or seats in the Legislature. The judicial decree not only makes the surrender easy, but invests it with the character of duty, which cannot be neglected without disadvantage and not a little risk.

Something is due in the matter to those outside of the State who have steadily deprecated the renewal of harsh measures against it. Their case has to some extent rested upon the hypothesis that injustice was done to Georgia in assuming that any considerable proportion of its people are prepared to override the law in their eagerness to give effect to their antipathies. The theory of the opposition to further Congressional interference has been that the wrong done to the expelled members would be rectified in due course by the local law,—that evils complained of would be redressed without Federal intervention. This plea will be untenable if, with the Supreme Court against them, the obstructives presist in their resistance to the rights of the colored citizen. Professions and protestations to which we have given some heed will be worthless in the presence of deliberate antagonism to the provisions of law and the known purposes of Congress. Democratic extremists in Georgia, then, play into the hands of another set of extremists at Washington.

The Minor Appointments in New-York.

We observe that some of the Republican ward committees in this City are particularly severe on Marshal BARLOW for not complying with their modest demand in regard to the minor appointments for New-York; but we fail to see the justice of the outcry against him. The party is certainly under no special obligation to these committees. Last Fall, when registers, inspectors and canvassers were to be appointed for this City, the Police commissioners allowed each of the two great political parties to name one-half of them; and, as a general thing, the Republicans were selected upon the recommendation of one or the other of the committees in the several wards. When the election was over, and the State was lost to the Republicans by the most extensive system of frauds ever practiced, it was discovered that these Republican registers had permitted thousands of fraudulent names to be placed on the lists, and that in many of the voting precincts hundreds of votes had been cast in excess of the number registered.

This could hardly have happened without collusion between the Republican officers and the Democratic ballot-box stuffers. There is scarcely the shadow of a doubt that in many instances the Republican registers and inspectors purposely absented themselves from duty, or permitted the frauds to be perpetrated before their eyes, without making an effort to arrest them.

The truth of the matter is, these ward committees, as at present organized, are wholly irresponsible bodies, and cannot be justly said to represent more than a fraction of the Republican Party in this City. Their assumption of control, and the existing spirit of faction, have been fruitful of injury to the party. If they could not select honest officers, competent to protect the ballot box, it would be folly to expect them to recommend fit persons to fill positions of trust in the revenue service; and Marshal BARLOW deserves the thanks of the community for closely scrutinizing their recommendations. It is well known that two sets of committees, each claiming to be "regular," exist in almost every ward, and this constitutes an additional reason for the exercise of caution in acting on their suggestions in the matter of appointments. We hope that Federal officers in this City will require higher recommendations than those furnished by these committees as at present constituted.

Tears for Texas.

The World weeps for Texas. "The Lone Star has been drawn back," it sighs, "by the powerful attraction of United States bayonets." The trouble with Texas is not, according to the World, in "native Texans of conservative extraction,"—oh, no! They are never among the desperadoes and ruffians who plunder and murder innocent people there. The villains are all "Radicals," so that, "if you are not a devout Radical, the chances are nine to one against you that you will get murdered by a delegate or a delegation of outlaws, who have neither military commission nor civil process to fear." Is not this a dreadful state of affairs? And is not the World's a fair and candid review of the condition of Texas, where, it tells us, every man not a devout Radical is "murdered"—or, at least, stands but one chance in ten of escaping?

The World should take comfort from SEMMES. That worthy reads its articles, likes them, borrows its phraseology, calls the Government troops "military satraps and tyrants," and spells loyal "loil." Yet he hopefully addresses Texas thus:

"Glorious Texas! what if thou art a little too much given to the bowie-knife and revolver, and what if grass widows are somewhat frequent in some of thy localities, thou art all right at heart! In an evil hour you were beguiled into accepting the fatal embrace of the Yankees. Bide thy time! Thou art rapidly filling up with population. Thou wilt soon become an empire in thyself, and the day is not far distant when thou may est again strike for freedom!"

Cheery language like this from a man who is not "loil," ought to stir up the World from its despondency. SEMMES does not grieve, as without hope, over the fact that "the Lone Star has been drawn back to the present galaxy by the powerful attraction of United States bayonets." No more should the World play the part of Dismal Jemmy because the Attorney-General has given an opinion in favor of the legality of the conviction by military commission of WEAVER, who wantonly murdered the negro. "The one reflection," says the World, "which at present can gild the dismal horizon which encompasses Texas round about is, for the inhabitants thereof, 'We once were Texans.'" Not at all. Such reflections may do very well for the Weavers and the Yergers of the Southwest to gild their horizons with, but the Weavers and Yergers are, fortunately, a very small part of the peaceable, order-loving and murder-hating communities who are to control the destinies of those regions.

Base Ball in Danger.

We regret very sincerely to hear the current stories relative to the enormous sums which are said to have changed hands in betting upon the exciting games of base ball which have recently taken place between a Western nine and the champion clubs of New-York and other Atlantic cities. We hope that they are exaggerated—there is certainly room for the hope—and we still more earnestly hope that whether exaggerated or not, the game of base ball will, for the future, be preserved from the contamination which must assuredly ensue if it is to be prostituted into a mere occasion of reckless "plunging" for professional gamblers, and an invidious form of temptation to its youthful and ardent admirers to commence a "sporting" career. Surely, there is scope enough for gentry of a certain class to exercise their vocation in connection with prize fighting, faro saloons, rat killing, sham pedestrians, cock fighting and the like, without corrupting a game designed, and admirably suited, to afford healthful relaxation to our youth of all conditions and circumstances. The great charm of base ball is that it is a game which, while it comprises all the necessary elements for affording a pleasing and harmless excitement, and for developing the physical strength and manly hardihood of its votaries, can yet be regularly practiced and even played in the shape of formal matches without interfering unduly with business hours, or necessarily exposing the youthful player to any temptation which the most rigid of moralists need take exception to. In England, the sister game—cricket—has escaped the danger, and hitherto, at least, we had flattered ourselves that base ball was also exempt. We repeat our earnest hope that all concerned in the management of the game will do their utmost to preserve it from the threatened contamination. There can be but one opinion as to the urgent need that exists among us for extended and readily accessible means of physical education and rational amusement for our hard-working and over-anxious youth, and it would be little short of a national calamity if a game like base ball, harmless in itself, and, when properly conducted, purely beneficial in its effects, should be sacrificed to the devouring spirit of gambling, which has already gained possession of so many of our favorite sports.

The Defensive Strength of England—The Debate on Military Reorganization.

There has been a great debate in the House of Commons on the state of the British Army, and the urgent necessity that exists for the organization of an army of reserve, to supplement the regular forces in case of invasion, or to act as a home garrison in case of their being required for foreign service, as well as a nursery for recruits. The debate was remarkable for the thoroughness with which the subject was discussed, and the frankness with which both officials and ex-officials admitted the inefficiency of the present system for the defence of the Kingdom, while differing as to the best method of amending it. The state of things at present is briefly this:

The English regular army, after deducting the forces necessary for India, Ireland and the colonies, would barely suffice to furnish a small nucleus of thoroughly drilled troops in case of an invasion, and its cost per man is so enormous that any considerable increase is out of the question, putting aside the difficulty of obtaining recruits, except by means of a large bounty. The militia, 130,000 strong, is called out for twenty-eight days' service every year, and is partially officered by country gentlemen who have formerly served in the regular army, but ruined as to real efficiency by the number of incompetent officers, and the want of anything more than battalion drill. The volunteer force, composed of purely citizen soldiers, who, as a rule, only aim at being good marksmen, contains good material; but the experience of the late Dover review shows their utter want of organization, and consequent weakness, when massed together in large bodies.

Under these circumstances, and with every European Power increasing its armaments to the very utmost possible pitch, it is not surprising to find that English statesmen are disquieted at a state of things under which £13,000,000 is annually spent upon an army which, for the defence of the Kingdom against an invasion at short notice, is admitted to be practically useless. England has no very trustworthy allies just now, and he would be a bold man who would venture to predict with any confidence what the attitude toward her of France will be five years hence. So we find in the recent debate some speakers demanding a militia conscription—hitherto regarded as an extreme war measure only—and others advising the offer of greater inducements to enlistment, while everybody who spoke declared the necessity of "doing something"—a conclusion to which the Secretary at War assented. What that something will be remains to be seen; but it is evident, even making allowance for the habitual tendency of Parliamentary speakers to make the worst of things, that England is thoroughly alarmed at the discovery of her defenceless state, and more than half inclined to go off into one of the periodical panics from which she used to suffer so severely in the earlier days of the Second Empire.

The Missouri Bonds.

The announcement of the intention of the Missouri authorities to resume payment in coin of the interest upon the railroad bonds for which the State is liable, seems to have been premature. St. Louis journals refer to the subject to scout as unauthorized the reported purpose of the Treasurer, and to stigmatize the whole movement as speculative and improper.

The principal of the bonds is payable in specie, and in specie they will be redeemed when they reach maturity. But the coupons do not set forth the kind of money in which they shall be paid. They promise to pay so many dollars merely. And though at the date of their issue the only legal money was gold and silver, it remains to be decided that they may not be paid in legal-tender notes. The Supreme Court decision refers to contracts specifically payable in coin, which in this case applies but to the principal of the bonds. Whether the Attorney-General of the State was right in declaring that the interest is also payable in specie, is a question yet to be decided judicially.

But the main point relied upon by the Anzeiger, which is Republican, and by the Republican, which is Democratic, is, that the State Legislature, although in session when the Supreme Court decision was pronounced, made provision for payment of the interest in currency, and nothing more. The appropriation at the disposal of the Treasurer is insufficient for payment in specie; and an opinion of another State officer cannot justify him in expending a dollar not expressly designated for this object by the Legislature. If the statements of the journals referred to are correct, the ex officio Fund Commissioners cannot fulfil the promise published over their signatures in the Evening Post.

MINOR TOPICS.

General BUTTERFIELD has been appointed Sub-Treasurer in this City, in the place of Mr. VAN DYCK. We cannot permit Mr. VAN DYCK to leave the high and responsible position he has occupied for many years without repeating what we have frequently said of his character and the way he has performed his duties. When we have said of a public officer filling such a place as that of Sub-Treasurer that he has under all circumstances displayed high ability and perfect integrity, we have said nearly all that could be desired. This eulogium can be passed on Mr. VAN DYCK truthfully. And in this view he has commanded public respect, and merited public applause. For another excellent trait he must now be commended—we refer to his suavity toward all men with whom he came in contact. He was always ready to communicate whatever was proper to business men or to the public at large, and he was always easily approached by those who had occasion to see him in connection with the financial interests of the Government. Toward all he was courteous, and at all times discreet and dignified.

We shall give a hearty welcome to the stranger which the steamship Great Eastern is now bringing to our shores. The French Cable will soon be landed on the coast of Massachusetts near the old town of Plymouth, whose famous Rock—the "Blarney Stone of New England" as that witty Irishman and President of the St. Patrick's Society of New-York, the late JAMES REYBURN, once dubbed it—gave a less hospitable reception to the Mayflower and her complement of sturdy Puritans two hundred and fifty years ago. Our news this morning is, that the great ship is seventy-five miles on her course from Brest, all well and the weather propitious. Friend PETER COOPER has induced Mr. Attorney-General HOAR to write something against the State authority of Massachusetts to grant the privilege of domicil to our coming French friend, but this is wholly extra-judicial, and the Cable will assuredly be landed first and the question tried afterwards—when Congress meets.

It is fashionable with many good people, and some who are not so good, to hold Secretary BOUTWELL responsible for every change of wind in the money and gold markets. If money is too easy, he is an inflationist; if tight, a contractionist; if gold is dear, he ought to sell; if cheap, he is denounced for parting with his gold on any terms! This reminds us of a mob in one of the small Italian cities, many years ago, who assailed the Police and even the higher authorities, because the cheap opera-house, which they were in the habit of enjoying as a right, supplied poor music. They made the quarrel, not with the indifferent prima donne and the careless tenori, but with the Chief of Police. Things went wrong, as speculations will sometimes do in Wall-street, and somebody must be held to account. In the present instance, who so proper as the Chief of the Treasury!

We are much obliged to the London Star for praising our Government for its action against Cuban fillibustering from this country. Nobody here is surprised at the conduct of the Government. Everybody recognizes the fact that it is bound to enforce the neutrality laws,—which prevent the carrying on, from our shores, of hostile movements against a Power with which we are at peace. We always enforce these laws.

The appointment of General DANIEL BUTTERFIELD to the important position vacated by the resignation of Mr. VAN DYCK, will give general satisfaction. General BUTTERFIELD served gallantly during the war, and will fill his new position with ability and credit.

We never doubted that this country would quickly resume the position it lost during the war as the great cotton-supply field of the world. The evidences of it have been growing of late. We notice at this moment the cry of the English cotton trade to the English Government for additional assistance toward the business of cotton growing in the East Indies, so that a competitor for this country may be found. But it is not in this way that a competitor of the South can be maintained; and in a year or two more we shall again furnish to the market the enormous crops which will make rivalry impossible.

Now the people of West Tennessee have commenced a movement to secure Chinese labor and immigration, of course they have called a "Convention" as the best way of beginning action. There will be no difficulty about getting the Chinese—not merely by the thousand but by the million or the tens of millions, and there is no doubt that they will work cheap enough. If there were no other considerations, the question would be a very simple one; but there are moral, political and physical points involved, which we hope the Convention will not overlook.

"Reddy the Blacksmith" made his escape, but "Johnny the Greek" has been less fortunate. Yesterday he was convicted of robbery, but his sentence was deferred till to-morrow. We don't suppose the "Greek" has sufficient influence, personal or political, to get permission to escape from justice.

The Italian Government is certainly justified in taking severe measures against the conspirators, revolutionists and disturbers of the public peace. Many of these agitators claim to be Democrats or Republicans; but they are really acting in behalf of the dethroned Bourbons and in the interest of FRANCIS II.

The coming political campaign in Pennsylvania for State officers will be a very close one. The Democrats will not try less hard than ever to win; but if the Republicans remain united and show themselves active, they will doubtless carry the State.

The Secretary of State has given formal notice, through a letter addressed to the Governors of the different States, of the Industrial Exhibition that will be held at Cordoba in the Argentine Confederation. It is very desirable that there should be a good display of American manufactures, implements and inventions on this occasion. We ought to have a great commerce with the peoples of South America.

Our neighbor of the Commercial speaks of the present Chancellor of the Exchequer in England as Mr. Hudson LOWE. This is a mistake. The name of the Finance Minister in Mr. GLADSTONE'S Cabinet, is Mr. Robert LOWE. Sir HUDSON LOWE is even a more historic name, in at least one particular. He was the jailer of the great NAPOLEON at St. Helena. The office was an ungracious one in its best estate, but peculiarly obnoxious to bitter criticism in the case of the Governorship of St. Helena. The truth of history is believed by many persons to vindicate the fairness of the English Governor in his treatment of his illustrious prisoner, but at the time, 1815-1821, the partisans of NAPOLEON all over Europe represented the conduct of Sir HUDSON LOWE as harsh to the last degree.

The Supreme Court of Georgia, in deciding that the Constitutional State Code prohibits marriage between whites and negroes, does not seem to be over logical; its argument being, apparently, that as the Legislature cannot compel hotel-keepers, church owners, &c., to let negroes sit with whites, it should not make a law allowing whites and blacks to intermarry—if willing. If the hotel and church whites are willing, the negro, we presume, may take his seat.

Our fighting news from the Indian regions in the West, generally make readable paragraphs; but there is a quieter intelligence which excites a better sort of interest. Our Washington correspondent tells us that the Winnebago and Omaha Indians have been applying for their allotments of land, intending to go to agricultural work; and we also learn that the Pueblo and Navajo tribes of Arizona are farming their hill country very peaceably. The people of the latter tribe were wronged by being sent from their old ground, but General SHERMAN made them very happy by bringing them back. Their fine crops, their cattle and a school, under the Presbyterian Board, show that it is very possible to manage the Red Indians.

AMUSEMENTS.

Theatrical.

BOOTH'S THEATRE.

Another proof of the liberality and good taste which distinguish the administration of this theatre has been given in the production of an elaborate, and, on the whole, a very effective dramatization of TENNYSON'S "Enoch Arden," by Mme. JULIE DE MARGUERITE. The manner in which it is placed upon the stage adds to the already well-established reputation of the house for picturesqueness, and strict historical and geographical accuracy in all that relates to scenic illustration, costumes and other local details. The opening view is a perfect ideal picture of the life of a century ago on the southern English shore. The island, in the fourth act, is a masterpiece of rich, glowing, tropical color, and, among the more imaginative scenes, that Philip Ray's garden, in the fifth act, is not only an exquisite piece of work considered apart from the exigencies of the play, but is pervaded by a delicate sentiment which most aptly accords with the mystery and deep pathos of the situation. In one important particular, however, the unity of the effect is not sustained. Much of the incidental music is of a kind better adapted to modern romantic drama than to an old-time domestic story. Characteristic English melodies of the period in which Enoch Arden is supposed to have lived are so abundant, and are so thoroughly expressive of the simple and natural feeling of many scenes which the author of the play has introduced, that we can imagine no reason for employing any others—especially such as involve obvious anachronisms.

The piece itself has been constructed with care and considerable dexterity. The subject is a difficult one for theatrical treatment. Long intervals elapse between the successive events which must necessarily be brought before the spectator, and to carry the interest of a narrative, however strongly it may affect the emotions of an audience, safely and unbroken over a space of nearly twenty years, is one of the most trying of dramatic tasks. The incidents, too, of "Enoch Arden" are too profoundly mournful to be presented without relief before a popular amusement-seeking assemblage, and it has been thought judicious to impart a little brightness and animation by interjecting a rural festival and dance in one place—which is, indeed, suggested in the poem—by creating a fresh character, Reuben, who, though not essential to the development of the plot, contributes a little vitality to its progress, and by enlarging the functions of Miriam Lane, who enlivens one or two scenes with innocent and somewhat familiar jocularity. These slight additions are all arranged with judgment and discretion. The dialogue is faithful to the spirit, frequently to the letter, of the original, and is sometimes faulty from very excess of fidelity. Language which may have been framed with the rarest artistic skill to appeal to the sensibilities of readers may produce a totally different result when audibly uttered by living and moving impersonators of the story. The noble lines which touch the hearts of all who read them seem too exalted and high-strung when presented through the realistic medium of stage representation. In all such cases Mr. CHARLES READE'S method of using only such phrases as give the key-note, as it were, of powerful situations—phrases which embody the vital spirit of the scene—should be followed. "Enoch Arden" would be a better drama if the adapter had less literally adhered to the phraseology of the poem.

Of Mr. EDWIN ADAMS' representation of the principle character we can speak with high and sincere praise. It is distinguished in the earlier scenes by the manly breadth and vigor which he knows better than most actors how to portray; and, later, by a touching dignity and a depth and intensity of feeling which none but a really sympathetic and artistic nature could express. It exhibits the best qualities he possesses, although the opportunities for their display are narrowly limited. The blemish upon his performance is a disposition to heighten his effects by mere artifices of acting—excessive gesticulation and occasional bursts of needless rhetorical vehemence. Perfect simplicity is the foundation of all the grandeur of Enoch Arden's character, and precisely as its simplicity is forgotten, so is its nobleness lessened. The representation of the other important parts is good. Miss DE BAR, Miss MORANT, Mr. LAWLOR and Mr. FENNO display becoming moderation and delicacy in fulfilling their respective duties in a play that requires far more than ordinary thoughtfulness and intelligence.

"Enoch Arden," in one dramatic form or another has been for some years, we believe, a standard attraction in various parts of the United States. It was never represented in England, however, until last February, and was then produced only through the involuntary agency of an American, Mr. L. P. BARRETT, who, designing to appear in it in that country, entrusted his own version to the late Mr. STERLING COYNE, with the request that he would rearrange it for the London stage. The work was only partly done when Mr. COYNE died. It was taken in hand by another writer, Mr. BARRETT having returned home, and was broughtout with success at the Olympic Theatre; but, according to a custom too common in every land, without the slightest acknowledgment of its origin. Since then it has taken a regular place upon the lists of theatres throughout England.

"Enoch Arden" will be repeated every evening at Booth's Theatre until further notice.

FIFTH-AVENUE THEATRE.

The success of the Boston company, now playing at this establishment, proves that the public has not yet surrendered all interest in theatrical entertainments of a worthy class, although everything that could be done has been done within the last eight months to pervert its instincts and upset its understanding. Their first appearance, on Monday evening, attracted little attention, and the audience was small; but the unanimity with which their merit was recognized at once excited public curiosity, and the house has ever since been profitably filled. The performances have been received with every demonstration of satisfaction, in spite of the perilous length of the programme, which is composed of a three-act drama and a long burlesque. It is not easy to see how it could at present be abbreviated, but heavy bills, as a rule, ought never to be risked during the Summer season.

The most important feature of the entertainment at the Fifth-avenue is the charming drama of "Dora," by CHARLES READE, whose name, by the by, appears in none of the printed announcements. We have been long accustomed to the theatrical practice of robbing English authors of their literary property, but the notion of denying them the right of popular recognition by suppressing their names is new. Let us hope that it will not become general. Mr. TENNYSON'S name, to be sure, is given with full formality, and his poem receives the graceful tribute of a flattering adjective, in three syllables, but as there probably was never an adapted drama which owed less to the original sketch than this, it is hard to see why Mr. READE should be entirely cast away in the cold. Indeed, the play of "Dora" can hardly be called an adaptation at all. From a very brief poetic narrative, in which no dramatic element can easily be detected, the author has drawn suggestions for one of the tenderest and loveliest domestic plays of modern days—a play which, when thoroughly well acted in all parts, affords the highest intellectual enjoyment which the stage can now impart. Unfortunately, it will not bear rough handling in any particular; and, again unfortunately, the representation at the Fifth-avenue, though good in many respects, and calculated to inspire pleasant hopes of what the company may do in less exacting dramas, is not so perfect as could be wished for. It is like a hurried photograph of a delightful picture, sufficient to indicate the fine outline and proportions of the work, but giving no sign of many of its beauties of color and expression. The character of Dora, upon which the author lavished his chief thought and care, is sustained by Miss LIZZIE PRICE, a young lady from Philadelphia, who shows intelligence and ability, but whose mental bearing is too rigid and unsympathetic to fully convey the idea of large-hearted devotion and sweet humanity which belong to the character. Mr. FREDERICK ROBINSON, who undertakes the part next in importance, that of Farmer Allan, falls into the serious error of often expressing the passionate pride of the stern old man by explosive physical exhibitions. An actor may know all about that dangerous step which leads from the sublime to the ridiculous, without practically proving his knowledge. We are told that Mr. ROBINSON formerly played Farmer Allan with much more moderation, and consequently with better effect, and that his present exaggerations are merely the result of attempts at over-elaboration. This is so common a fault, even among actors of good repute, that we may readily credit the statement in the present case. If the management could conveniently persuade Mr. ROBINSON to resume his Boston method, they would confer an obligation upon the public and upon the gentleman himself. In the part of Luke Blomfield, Dora's faithful and long unrewarded follower, Mr. C. H. VANDENHOFF makes almost as unlucky a mistake as Mr. ROBINSON'S, though not of the same kind. There is nothing in the position occupied by this character that justifies a clownish demeanor, yet Mr. VANDENHOFF, now and again assumes a half-witted "low comedy" aspect, totally at variance with the wholesome nature of the simple rustic. But for this tendency, Mr. VANDENHOFF'S performance would be the best individual success of the evening. He certainly shows a keener apprehension of the general requirements of his rôle than any of his associates. Mr. H. F. DALY, as Farmer Allan's Son, gives so correct an interpretation of a subordinate part as to raise it to positive importance. Miss BLANCHARD'S personation of Mary Morrison is pleasant enough, but the lady seems unaccustomed to this style of performance and acts as if under restraint. But, after all, and in spite of the deficiencies we have mentioned, the representation is extremely good—one which all may witness with satisfaction, and in which many will take delight.

The special strength of this company, however, is shown in the burlesque which concludes the entertainment. Parva leves capiunt animos; but, without disrespect to OVID, the steadiest mind could not resist the influence of a performance like Mr. STUART ROBSON'S Captain Crosstree, in BURNAND'S "Black-eyed Susan." The piece is not better nor worse than the average of English extravaganzas, but it has at least a certain form and purpose, contains some capital opportunities for humorous development, and although somewhat aggressive in the matter of puns, betrays none of the degrading subserviency to what ADDISON calls the passion of Paranomasia, which renders Mr. FARNIE'S contributions to theatrical literature so intolerable. A burlesque must be remarkably well acted, just now, to induce us to declare it anything but a nuisance—and "Black-Eyed Susan" is certainly nothing of that sort. Moreover, it is not disfigured by the slightest indecency or grossness. This, as well as the cleverness of the performance, may perhaps be attributed to the fact that most of the ladies and gentlemen concerned are not casual English visitors. In fact, the only exceptions to the general good taste which prevails are introduced by a stranger, Mr. H. JOSEPHS, who, though not immoderately offensive, allows himself to practice a few old and unclean tricks, which might as well be laid aside. The drumpet business is one of them. Miss KITTIE BLANCHARD shines quite luminously in this travestie. She dances neatly, sings carelessly, but pretty well, and differs from the heroines of the Broadway theatres in being the owner of a few original ideas. She errs in adopting the coarse method of speech, half nasal, half guttural, which first came in with the "Mose" drama, and with which a number of our young actresses appear to be infatuated. That she can avoid it if she pleases her abstinence in "Dora" shows. That she should every well-wisher will assure her. Other conspicuous parts in this amusing trifle are efficiently sustained by Miss MARY CARY, Miss LILLIE DAVENPORT, Messrs. PEARSON, DALY and MAGINNIS. The whole performance is far superior to that of the original representatives at the Royalty Theatre, in London.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

Miss LUCILLE WESTERN is at present fulfilling a short engagement at this establishment, and attracting audiences of unusual magnitude. She appears nightly as Lady Isabel Vane, in Mr. TAYLEURE'S version of "East Lynne,"—the same with which Miss WESTERN'S name has been associated for many years, and which was, we believe, the foundation of her professional prosperity. Her performance is too familiar to the public of New-York to require particular description at this time. It is substantially the same now as when she first introduced it at the Winter Garden, and produces precisely the same effects upon her audiences. Miss WESTERN is supported by a well-chosen company, which, we learn, will presently be further strengthened for the production of "Oliver Twist."

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

A single representation of VICTORIEN SARDOU'S "Seraphine," which has lately divided the attention of the Paris public with his more robust drama, "Patrie," is announced to take place tomorrow evening at the Academy of Music. A number of the best artists of the French and New-Orleans companies will participate.

The Contingent Expenses of Minister Dix in Paris—An Explanation.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I find in your paper of this morning, and in a letter of your Washington correspondent of June 21, the following paragraph:

"MR. REVERDY JOHNSON'S ACCOUNTS.—The accounts of Mr. REVERDY JOHNSON, Ex-Minister to England, were audited a few days ago at the Treasury Department. His telegraph bill for the three months ending March 31, amounted to $980 in gold. This was exclusive of the large bill which was presented some time ago for cable telegraphing in reference to the celebrated protocol which the Senate rejected, and which has been paid by BARING BROTHERS on the order of the State Department. Mr. JOHNSON'S contingent expenses during the same period amounted to $1,567, which is considered moderate. The contingent expenses of Minister DIX, at Paris, for a similar period amounted to $2,900. The comparison of both items will show that Mr. JOHNSON was not, after all, so very extravagant.

So far as the foregoing undertakes to state the contingent expenses of "Minister DIX at Paris," it is an entire mistake. The expenses referred to, for the quarter ending 31st of March, 1869, were $930, instead of $2,900 as stated by you correspondent. The aggregate contingent expenses of the United States Legation at Paris, for the entire year 1868, were $2,768, an amount below the sum allowed by the Department, and considerably less than that erroneously given by your correspondent for three months.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

JOHN W. DIX,
Late Assistant Secretary of Legation.

WASHINGTON.

The Pacific Railroads—A New Report Expected—The Arrivals of Immigrants—Their Ages, Nationality, and Occupations—The New Assistant Treasurer of New-York.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, June 23.

Hon. I. N. MORRIS, one of the Warren-Wilson Commission appointed to examine and report upon the Union and Central Pacific Railroad, has prepared what is understood to be a long and rather sensational report on the roads, in which he dissents from the views of his colleagues, and holds that the line generally is unfinished. He expects to be able to present it to the President toward the end of the week. The supplemental report of his colleagues, which is not yet ready, will be made to the Secretary of the Interior, as required by law.

ARRIVALS OF IMMIGRANTS.

The official returns received at the Bureau of Statistics, Treasury Department, show that there arrived at the port of New-York during the quarter ending March 31, 1869, 27,592 passengers, of whom 24,489 were immigrants intending to reside in the United States. ASSISTANT TREASURER OF NEW-YORK.

Secretary BOUTWELL returned last night, accompanied by Colonel HOWE, Special Treasury Agent for New-York. He received a large number of visitors this morning, including Senators FENTON and COLE, and had a long interview with the President, during which the commission of General DANIEL BUTTERFIELD was signed as Assistant Treasurer at New-York, vice H. H. VAN DYCK, Esq., resigned. General BUTTERFIELD is well known to the public of New-York and to the army as an officer of rare executive ability. He was Colonel of the Fifth Regiment United States Infantry until thrown out by the recent consolidation, and in accepting this position will of necessity vacate his military commission.

REPRESENTATIVE OF THE CUBAN GOVERNMENT.

Among the arrivals to-day is Señor MORALES LEMUS, the Cuban Envoy, who comes for the purpose of presenting to the President his credentials as the representative of the Cuban Government, provided he is afforded the opportunity of so doing. His commission is signed by CESPEDES, and he brings a copy of the Constitution adopted by the General Assembly of the Cubans. In view of the recent proceedings in New-York, which inure so decidedly to the benefit of the Spaniards, Señor LEMUS is very anxious to secure favorable action by this Government.

GENERAL WEBB AND COLUMBIA COLLEGE.

Brevet Major-General A. S. WEBB, United States Army, has been invited to the Presidency of Columbia College, New-York, but has not yet decided whether he will accept or not. General WEBB will be pleasantly remembered in this city as formerly in command of the Forty-fourth Regiment United States Infantry, and prior thereto as Superintendent of West Point Military Academy. He is not yet 38 years of age, but is one of the most intelligent and thoroughly educated officers in the army.

DISCHARGE OF CLERKS.

Several clerks were to-day dismissed from the Surgeon-General's office, among them Hospital Steward W. P. TONRY, who, a few days since, married ANNA SURRATT. That act, however, is not supposed to be his offence.

THE TROUBLE WITH BRAZIL.

Hon. J. WATSON WEBB, our late Minister to Brazil, was at the Executive Mansion this morning, and had a long interview with the President relative to the condition of affairs in Brazil, and the reasons which prompted his retirement from that country.

INTERNAL REVENUE RECEIPTS.

The receipts of internal revenue for the month of June will reach $21,000,000; and for the fiscal year ending June 30, will be $158,000,000. Whisky will show nearly $40,000,000 at fifty cents, against $18,000,000 at two dollars for the previous year.

PERSONAL.

Senator FENTON left for New-York to-night.

A member of the editorial staff of one of your contemporaries, who was dispatched by that journal some time ago on a trip through the South for the purpose of reporting on its condition politically and financially, but more particularly with a view to examine its agricultural and business aspects, has just returned to this city after an absence of nearly two months. When he first started he wrote one or two letters on the Southern country, but as he proceeded into the interior and got below Virginia, he felt that he could not conscientiously discharge his duty as a journalist and feel safe. He says that the whole South is for sale, and represents the condition of society as turbulent and riotous. As a precautionary measure he requested Mr. GREELEY not to publish his letters until his return to New-York, which was complied with. The editor in question got more intimately acquainted with Kuklux gangs than he considered desirable, but his editorial associates will be glad to learn that he comes back with the usual number of legs, arms, &c.

Dispatches to the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, June 23.

PURCHASE OF BONDS AND GOLD SALES.

When Secretary BOUTWELL was at Groton, toward the close of last week, he wrote Assistant Secretary RICHARDSON a letter with regard to the modification of his plan for the purchase of bonds and the sale of gold. He placed the letter with his own hand in the Groton Post Office. The letter was received by Judge RICHARDSON on Monday, and by him its contents were kept secret until after the close of business, and it was not earlier than 4:30 o'clock when a letter was written to the Assistant Treasurer at New-York on the subject, and the paragraph furnished to the Press. Both these gentlemen are confident that owing to the strictness with which the matter was guarded, there could be no premature disclosure on the part of any Government officer.

CUBAN AFFAIRS IN THE CABINET.

Cuban affairs have not as yet been a subject of consultation, although occasionally a theme of conversation merely, in the Cabinet, nor according to present aspects is it probable that any official action will soon be taken with regard to affairs in that island. The Government has no information to show that the opposing forces in Cuba have ever met in an open field, but that what little fighting has been done amounts to nothing more than skirmishing. The operations have been confined to a few local points, with no marked political results, and the Cubans have not yet succeeded in establishing themselves in a single spot. Therefore, as no case is presented which calls for recognition of belligerent rights, no member of the Cabinet has expressed a desire for, or hinted action in, that direction. It is no secret that the Spanish Minister has been informed that, although the Government and people of the country sympathize with the Cubans, the Neutrality laws will be enforced, and as a proof of the honesty of the Government in executing them the Spanish Minister has been placed in direct communication with United States Attorneys and Marshals, so that he can furnish them with information accompanied by proof relative to secret military expeditions, in order that they may be promptly carrying out the instructions given months ago to intercept the sailing of hostile vessels. The recent arrests in New-York were made on information furnished to the Federal officers in New-York, through Spanish sources. The cause of action was owing to open boasting by Cubans of their success in landing men and arms on the island. The Government has been selling surplus arms to all parties without distinction, asking no questions as to their future use.

SENATOR SUMNER AND SECRETARY FISH.

It has been ascertained from an official source, that there is no disagreement, as reported, between Senator SUMNER and Secretary FISH relative to the instructions to Minister MOTLEY, which the former has seen, and, besides, the social relations of these gentlemen continue friendly.

TRADE WITH VENEZUELA.

The United States Consul at Puerto Cabello, Venezuela, informs the Department of State that the Congress of that Republic has decreed an additional duty of twenty per cent. on the ordinary import duties of the tariff of 1867, actually in force, to be paid cash on all goods imported from the 13th of April last. The goods specified in the Consular-certified invoices previous to that date, will not pay the additional duty mentioned, which shall be collected only during the twenty months counting from the 13th of April last. Another law passed by that Congress on the 15th inst., declared that all export duties shall be abolished and cease to be collected from the 1st of July of the present year.

WEST POINT CADETS.

The President has determined upon the appointment of eight cadets at large to the United States Military Academy at West Point, which, with the two heretofore, completes the list of ten constituting his quota. The Secretary of War is now preparing the commissions for the new appointees. The other appointments to the Academy—one from each Congressional District—made upon recommendations of Representatives in Congress, will also be announced in a few days. The cadets are appointed one year in advance, and will not enter the Academy until next Summer.

APPOINTMENTS.

The President has appointed AUGUSTUS PUTNAM, Collector of Customs for the District of Middletown, Conn.; JOHN T. HARPER, Collector of Internal Revenue for the Eighth District of Illinois; GEORGE D. MONTAGUE, Collector of Internal Revenue in Pennsylvania; WILLIAM T. HARLOW, Assessor of Internal Revenue for the Eighth Massachusetts District. THOMAS MILLER, of Ohio, has been appointed Agent of the Sacs and Foxes, and MARTIN STUBBS, of Kansas, Agent of the Kaw Indians. JOHN LORING has been appointed Postmaster at Waterloo, N. Y. JOSEPH F. COOK, colored, brother of the recently-elected Register of Washington City, was to-day appointed to a first-class clerkship in the Internal Revenue office.

THE REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

The recent reorganization of Internal Revenue Districts under the jurisdiction of Supervisors, required the reappointment of some of the Supervisors. Among the States included in the reorganization are Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, forming one district; Alabama and Mississippi, another; Georgia and Florida, a third, and Louisiana and Arkansas, a fourth. No appointment was made for the first-named other than the officers under whose charge the States were heretofore assigned, while for the three last-named districts, the following named Supervisors have been reappointed, respectively: N. D. STANWOOD, W. KRYZANOWSKI and L. J. CONKLIN.

Deputy Commissioner of Internal Revenue DOUGLASS has returned and resumed his duties at the Department.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury RICHARDSON will leave Washington to-morrow evening, for Boston, where he will remain about two weeks.

EDITORIAL EXCURSION.

Jaunt of the New-Jersey Editors to the Pennsylvania Coal Region—The First Halt at Bethlehem.

From Our Own Correspondent.

BETHLEHEM, PENO., Tuesday, June 22, 1869.

The annual excursion of the New-Jersey Editorial Association is now a long established custom, rooted into the very nature of things editorial in New-Jersey; but the present year has brought an innovation, in the fact that the excursion has for the first time extended beyond the limits of the State; and the editors at this present writing are strangers in a strange land. It required nine years for them to exhaust the resources of Jersey; but now that they have burst her boundaries there is danger to all the neighboring lands.

To the intensely practical, ever busy metropolitan mind, with all nonsense ground out of it by the attrition of ceaseless activity, there is at first sight something comical in this gathering together of individuals engaged in the same calling, merely for the sake of three days of uncomfortable railroading, of over-crowded hotels, of enduring together all the annoying "tricks upon travelers" that landlords and railroad officials know so well how to inflict. But there is something in the excursion that is a recompense for its ills, and which can be accepted even by the practical as its justification. The men who wield the power of the Press in the State are brought into personal contact, and are, as it were, unified. Whenever this happens the men of ideas invariably give tone to the affair; and the Press of New-Jersey has therefore been much improved by these annual pilgrimages. There is the other fact, too, that of late years the ladies and children of the editors are always of the party; and while they make the expedition a huge protracted family picnic, they are an effectual check on male dissipation.

The excursion of the present year was arranged to start at noon to-day from Easton, Penn., for a tour through the coal regions of the Quaker State; and thus far the programme has been carefully and pleasantly carried out. It started on time on a special train provided by the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, and reached here at an early hour of the afternoon, and with full time to view all the matters of interest in this ancient and quaint Moravian town. And the old place has attractions for the tourists that can hardly be offered by any other hamlet on the continent. Settled by the Moravians in 1741, and long exclusively inhabited by them and under their control, it has retained their impress even to these days, when bustling energy has overborne the old-time asceticism and simplicity. In the old churchyard the dead of the founders sleep in long, straight lines. From grave to grave you step down the days and months and years of time; for the only order of burial is the date of death; and males and females are in separate rows. Each grave is covered with a plain stone laid flat upon the ground, and bearing no inscription except the name, age and date of death; the mightiest of those who are here gathered to their fathers have no more than this and the lowliest have no less. A few of the houses that they built and the great church that they erected yet stand; but all have been modernized and tortured out of resemblance to the ancient structures.

The relics of the Moravians are not the only objects of interest in the town that sits so daintily on the hills. Across the river, crowning another hill, is the beautiful building of the Lehigh University or Packer Institute, just erected, and endowed by Hon. ASA PACKER by the munificent donation of $600,000. Below this splendid building, on the bank of the Lehigh River, are the great works of the Lehigh Zinc Company; and a little further down the stream is the equally extensive establishment of the Bethlehem Iron Company. Thus labor and learning stand lovingly side by side, and capital gives each a helping hand.

To-night the excursionists are having a hop at one of the hotels where, also, a business meeting was held at an earlier hour, when final arrangements were made for the annual dinner at the Wyoming House, Scranton. Mr. Z. K. PANGBORN, of Jersey City, was appointed Chairman of a Committee to report resolutions expressive of the regret of the Association at the death of Mr. RAYMOND.

The excursionists number 250 persons, representing nearly all of the 102 newspapers of the State, and under the guidance of Mr. CHARLES TOMLINSON, President, and Mr. JOHN F. BADCOCK, of New-Brunswick, the indefatigable Secretary, are meeting with remarkable success, and reaping all possible enjoyment from that jaunt into the coal regions which to-day commenced.

The Death of Mr. Raymond—Resolutions of the Association Adopted at the Annual Dinner.

SCRANTON, Wednesday, June 23.

At the annual dinner of the Association, given this evening at the Wyoming Hotel, Scranton, Penn., Mr. Z. K. PANGBORN, of the Jersey City Evening Journal, offered the following resolutions relative to the death of Mr. RAYMOND, which were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the members of the New-Jersey Editorial Association have learned with deep and sincere sorrow of the death of Hon. HENRY J. RAYMOND, of New-York, the founder, and for so long a period the distinguished editor of the NEW-YORK TIMES.

Resolved, That in his death we mourn the loss of one whose brilliant and successful career as a journalist had not only given to himself an honorable national reputation, but had also conferred lasting benefits on the editorial profession by the conspicuous example which he gave of dignified, courteous and able control and direction of one of the most widely-circulated, independent and reputable of American newspapers.

Resolved, That we tender our condolence to his bereaved family and to his associates of the NEW-YORK TIMES.

The memory of Mr. RAYMOND was drank standing and in silence, and feeling and eloquent addresses in eulogium of the deceased were made by Mr. PANGBORN and Mr. JOHN Y. FOSTER, of the Newark Courier.

COLLEGE COMMENCEMENTS.

WILLIAMS COLLEGE.

Opening Exercises of Commencement Week—Class Day—The Literary Exercises—The Class Festivities.

From Our Special Correspondent.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Wednesday, June 23, 1869.

The hopes of those who looked and longed for a pleasant Commencement week, were wholly overthrown on Monday, for although the sun stole forth in his beauty for a few moments at an early hour that morning, and imparted a gleam of joy to our valley, he was soon obscured by the returning clouds, which ere noon wholly enshrouded the town. But neither weather nor the early date of the exercises were able to deter the advent of friends and alumni. One hundred have already come, and each train, each stage, brings more, while the wealthy burghers of old Berkshire seek the place in their own conveyances. Old Williams is alive with joy, youth, and beauty.

PHI BETA KAPPA.

A second meeting of the Phi Beta Kappa was held on Monday afternoon, and the undergraduate members for the ensuing year were elected. A gentleman receives his appointment to membership in this Society for scholarship entirely; therefore, an election here is a public declaration of standing, and is valued equally with the honor of a year later. Those chosen from the class of 1870 were: WALTER G. MITCHELL, Cummington, Mass.; ROBERT B. HALL, Ashfield, Mass.; HARRY P. JUDSON, Waterford, N. Y.; JOHN C. HAINES, Chicago, Ill., and FRANK H. DAVENPORT, Boston, Mass.

CONCERT OF THE COLLEGE GLEE CLUB.

At 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon the Williams Instrumental and Glee Club, justly famed for their proficiency in music, gave an entertainment in the chapel to quite a fine audience. The concert was under the direction of T. B. WILDER, the leader of the Club, and Mr. R. L. TABOR presided at the organ. I subjoin a copy of the programme:

Part 1.—Toast, Zollner; "Lauriger;" "Huntsman's Farewell," Mendelssohn; "Mary's Lamb," March, Becker; "Captain John;" "He Shall Feed His Flock," Handel's "Messiah." F. B. Wilper. "Ben Baxter;" "Chapel," Krentzer. Part 2.—"Rumskey Ho!" "Stars of the Summer Night," quartette; "Where Would I Be?" Zollner; "Alice O! Calleo;" "German Student's Song," Mendelssohn; "Three Crows;" Waltz, Vogel; "Dry Up!" "Gloria in Excelsis," Mozart's Twelfth Mass.

The effect of this arrangement of College airs and more classic music was capital, and, judging from the demonstrations of the audience, was highly appreciated. The concert was a success and reflected great credit on those who took part in it. The Club is soon to make a tour for the purpose of giving a few concerts, and those who admire a chorus of male voices or appreciate the favorite airs of our American Colleges will do well to listen to them.

EXHIBITION OF THE ADELPHIC UNION.

In the evening the annual exhibition of the Adelphic Union took place. This Union is composed of the members of the literary societies. The speakers are chosen one half from each society, the valedictory orations alternating between them—this year the valedictory was from the Philotechnical Society. The following is the programme of the exhibition:

Music by Gilmore's Band. Oration, "Reward," Joseph Mattison, Chicago, Ill. Oration, "Perils of Peace," Arthur Robinson, North Adams, Mass. Poem, "A Long Look Ahead," William W. Wight, Jr., Troy, N. Y. Music. Oration, "Think of Living," Chas. D. Howk, New-Albany, Ind. Oration, "The Ideal," J. Maus Schermerhorn, Homer, N. Y. Poem, "Broken Playthings," Robert B. Hall, Ashfield, Mass. Music. Disputes, "Is it not Immaterial Representations should be Encouraged?" Affirmative, John Boyd Thacher, Albany, N. Y.; negative, C. W. Loomis, Binghamton, N. Y. Music. Oration, "Under Currents," Thos. H. Spann, Indianapolis, Ind. Oration, "A Mistake," James White, Huntingdon, C. E. Music. Oration, "Personality," with the Valedictory Address, J. Henry Whitehead, New-York City. Music.

The exhibition was well attended. The speaking was good, and the orations gave evidence of study in their preparation. While it may seldom be advisable to particularize in reference to such an exhibition, we feel that it would be unjust not to mention as an effort of marked merit the oration by Mr. ARTHUR ROBINSON, of North Adams, on "The Perils of Peace." In delivery it was excellent; in thought something beyond what we generally expect from an undergraduate. It is wholly unnecessary to comment upon the music; it was in GILMORE'S happiest mood, and seemed like the echoes from the great Boston Coliseum.

CLASS DAY.

What day in all the college year is to be compared with Class Day? How many and varied are its enjoyments. How does the student look forward to it. How he prays for fair weather, that all the pleasures of the day may be realized to their full extent. He thinks of those who are to unite with him in his joys, the parents, the sisters, the cousins, "the nearer one and dearer one still." How alive will the campus be! how will the sombre walls of the old buildings be enlivened by their voices! But if the day be not a fair one, then will the beauties of this little town, nestled away between "Greylock" and "The Dome," fail to be realized by those to whom he would rather their glories were manifested than to any other. A great part of the enjoyment of Class Day was lost on account of the weather. Tuesday was another deceptive day—a few flashing beams of sunlight in the early morn, followed by a dark, lowering, cheerless day. Yet, although so unpleasant, the whole day was one of great enjoyment, and the exercises passed off in a manner quite satisfactory to those who participated, whether as actors or audience.

At 9 o'clock in the morning a picked set of men gave a gymnastic exhibition at Goodrich Hall, under the supervision of Professor TREAT. The usual display of both light and heavy gymnastics was given, including some trapeze exercises, which would have been appreciated by our circus-going public. The Kappa Alpha and the Sigma Phi Societies each gave an elegant spread at their rooms, the former at 11 A. M., and the latter at 6 P. M. They were successes in every respect, and were well attended by the fair and their devoted swains.

THE LITERARY EXERCISES.

New arrivals during Tuesday morning swelled the company in town to such proportions that a large audience gathered at the Congregational Church at 2 o'clock, to listen to the literary exercises. The class of 1867, headed by Gilmore's Band, marched from the campus to the church at that hour, and listened to their orator and poet. The exercises at the church consisted of an oration by Mr. H. H. LEAVITT, of Lowell, and a poem by Mr. R. L. TABOR, of San Francisco, Cal. Mr. LEAVITT chose as the subject of his oration, "Consecration." He defined consecration to be the devotion of self to an end. A consecrated man must know himself fully—i. e., his capacity. On the thoroughness of this knowledge depends the measure of his success in life. Man's highest choice is God, and his noblest consecration is the consecration of himself to God and his cause. This is the one and the real choice. This, the speaker maintained, was the standard for his classmates this day. The orator's appearance and manner were good; he displayed much energy and force, though at times he was nervous and rapid, with a tendency to jerkiness. Mr. TABOR took for his theme—"Wealth." There was nothing marked in his poem. He sung in various metres; the time-worn measure of Hiawatha predominated. If a slight affectation in the poet is excepted, his performance was fair.

THE CLASS FESTIVITIES.

The class then adjourned to the Chapel where the ivy was planted after the time-honored fashion. The oration of Mr. J. L. KETCHAM was delivered by Mr. HENRY KETCHAM at the request of the class. Having sung the Ivy Song the class adjourned to the Library where the donation to the College Library, which consisted of the works of Burke, Sparks' Writings of Washington, Cooper's Works and Chambers' Encyclopedia, in all sixty-seven volumes, was made by Mr. E. H. COLE, of Nyack, N. Y., who in a few appropriate and eloquent remarks extended this gift to the College as a trifling token of the regard of '69 for their Alma Mater, and their hopes for her future glory and success. Rev. N. H. GRIFFIN, the Librarian, accepted the token of regard, responding to Mr. COLE in a most happy and enthusiastic strain. After the usual exchange of salutations between the graduating class and the lower classes, Mr. J. WHITE, of Huntingdon, C. E., delivered a most humorous and lively address to the lower classes, in which he reviewed the misdemeanors of these classes during the current college year, and concluded by an appeal to them to mend their ways. Mr. WHITE drew forth frequent peals of laughter and applause from his listeners. The class circle having then been formed under the ancient elms of the campus, Mr. W. P. WINSLOW, of Pittsford, Vt., read the history of the class of '69. After which the calumet circulated drawing forth expressions of merriment as the lips of some anti-tobacconist clasped it. With this the afternoon exercises of class-day closed, and the audience dispersed much pleased with the performances.

THE EVENING ADDRESS.

At 7:30 the church was partially filled to listen to the address before the Adelphic Union, which was pronounced by Rev. T. L. CUYLER, D. D., of Brooklyn, N. Y. Why need I speak of Dr. CUYLER? His reputation, though wide, is justly such as it is, and in his effort last night he added one to the many laurels which already crown his brow. His subject was "The Natural Orator," the methods of his training, the secret of his power, the source of his inspiration, and the glory of his work. The oration was eloquent in the highest degree, and was by far the most powerful production that has been presented to an audience in this section for years.

The enjoyments of Class Day were concluded by the usual dance in Goodrich Hall, which, to accommodate the orthodox notions of this institution, is styled a promenade concert. It was an enjoyable affair, and well attended by a fine company of blushing ladies and their attentive beaux, who are as gallant upon the ball-room floor as they are proficient in the recitation room. The success of the day was largely due to the efficient arrangements of the Committee, and especially to their Chairman, Mr. A. L. BILLINGS.

NATIONAL DEAF-MUTE COLLEGE.

The First Commencement—Interesting Exercises—The Efforts of the Graduating Class.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, June 23.

The first Commencement of the National Deaf-Mute College took place this morning, in the Congregational Church, in this city. President E. M. GALLAUDET, in his opening address, sketched the history of the institution since its foundation by AMOS KENDALL, in 1857, accorded to THADDEUS STEVENS the credit of making it a national establishment, with doors open to all, and described the progress made in the art of instructing deaf mutes, and the present system of tuition.

The graduating class, consisting of JOSEPH G. PARKINSON, of New-Hampshire, JAMES H. LOGAN, of Pennsylvania, and J. B. HOTCHKISS, of Connecticut, then delivered orations on the following subjects, respectively: "Expediency of Protective Duties," "A Glimpse at Science and Nature," and "Literature," with the valedictory. The orations were delivered in the sign language, and read coincidentally by Professor PRATT; and the spoken exercises were translated into the sign language by Professor FAY.

The performances of the graduates were received with great interest and favor by a very large audience, who manifested their applause through the medium of bouquets. Secretary COX was expected to deliver an address, but sickness in his family prevented his attendence. Addresses were made by AMOS KENDALL, Rev. Dr. SAMSON, President of Columbia College, and Rev. Mr. SUNDERLAND. The degrees were conferred by President GALLAUDET.

This is the first Commencement of a Deaf Mute College ever held at which the regular collegiate degrees were conferred. In addition to conferring the degree A. B. upon the graduates, the faculty conferred the degree of A. M. upon two distinguished deaf mutes.

VASSAR COLLEGE

The Commencement Exercises—Conferring Degrees Upon Thirty-four Young Ladies—Distinguished Professors Present.

From Our Own Correspondent.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Wednesday, June 23, 1869.

The Commencement proper occurred at Vassar College this morning. At 9:30 the chapel was thrown open and hundreds of ladies and gentlemen filed into it, taking seats in the right and left aisles, and leaving the centre seats for the students. At 9:45 the Board of Trustees, headed by Hon. WM. KELLY, ascended the platform, and were followed by the teachers and Professors. The President of the College, JOHN H. RAYMOND, LL.D., and the lady Principal, HANNAH W. LYMAN, were seated in the centre of the platform. The senior class, all arrayed in white, then entered the chapel and took the front seats, the remainder being occupied by the junior pupils. The introductory prayer was delivered by Rev. Dr. ROBINSON, President of the Rochester Theological Seminary.

The musical and oratorical exercises lasted about two hours; after which President RAYMOND addressed the graduating class, and conferred the Baccalaureate degree upon thirty-four young ladies.

The doxology was then sung, and the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Dr. LATHROP.

Among the prominent gentlemen who were present at the exercises were Professor HOPPIN, of Yale College; Professor ANDERSON, of Rochester University; Hon. IRA HARRIS and Hon. CHARLES VAN WYCK.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

The sale yesterday at Islip, L. I., by Messrs. JOHNSON & MILLER, was a grand success. The crowd was large, very respectable and very orderly, the bidding spirited, the prices good, and the lunch excellent and abundant. Mr. JOHNSON was in high spirits, telling stories, cracking jokes and knocking down lots in fine style. The sale was very large, and the results were quite satisfactory.

To-day Messrs. A. J. BLEECKER, SON & Co. have a positive and unconditional sale, by order of the Trustees, of 144 plots, four lots in each, at Elizabeth, N. J. The sale will be absolute and unreserved, rain or shine. There is a house on the premises, a few rods from the cars, affording shelter in case of inclement weather. A special train from the foot of Liberty-street will leave at 10 A. M., affording time for inspection of the ground and for refreshments which will be in readiness. Tickets will be furnished, free of expense, on application at the auctioneers' office, No. 77 Cedar-street.

The rain of Monday and yesterday caused no little disappointment to a large number of persons who intended attending the sale of the villa plots at Hamilton Park, S. I. On Monday at least fifty gentlemen went from this City to the island, through the severe storm, fearing the sale might be held and they not be present. The rain prevented, and it was adjourned until to-morrow, when, if the weather is fair, it will commence at 12:30 o'clock P. M. This sale is attracting great attention; its peculiar beauty and superiority over the class of property frequently sold at auction renders it more than ordinarily attractive. The demand for tickets has been very large, and among a substantial class of our citizens. The arrangements are so complete that it is scarcely possible for the sale to be other than a very pleasant one, and a very large crowd will undoubtedly attend. A fine band of music has been engaged, an elegant lunch will be served up by DELMONICO, a large force of policemen and one or more detectives will attend, and no improper or objectionable person will be allowed on the ground. It is of no consequence whether they intend behaving well or ill, they will not be tolerated at all. The owner's firm determination is to have none but desirable persons attend. All disreputable characters may as well take this warning and stay at home, for an attempt to attend, no matter whether they have tickets or not, will certainly result in utter failure. A large number of ladies, accompanied by their husbands, have already visited and examined the property. They will attend the sale, and an earnest invitation is extended to all other ladies who are interested in suburban property to accompany their fathers, husbands and brothers on this trip. Special arrangements have been made for their comfort and convenience, and they may safely anticipate a very enjoyable day. The excursion boat will leave the foot of Dey-street (Pier No. 19 North River) at 10:30 A. M. sharp. Free tickets, maps and full particulars may be had at the auctioneers' office, No. 77 Cedar-street, or at the owner's office, No. 26½ Broadway.

On Saturday Messrs. MULLER, WILKINS & Co. have a large sale at Rye, Westchester County, New-York. The property to be sold comprises four beautiful estates, divided into villa sites and town lots, located in Rye Park, Kingsland Place, Glendale and West Rye. The property will be sold without reserve, upon easy terms, and will afford an excellent opportunity to secure healthy, accessible, desirable and cheap country homes, within one hour's ride of New-York, by fifteen trains daily, on one of the best appointed railroads in the country. A special train will leave the depôt of the New-York and New-Haven Railroad at 10 o'clock A. M. on the day of sale. Particulars at the auctioneers' office, No. 7 Pine-street.

Affairs on the Isthmus—No Mails from Bogota—Movements of Shipping—Personal Intelligence.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PANAMA, Tuesday, June 15, 1869.

No mails from Bogota, the capital of this Republic, have been received since the departure of the last New-York steamer. The Conway left Santa Martha on the 2d inst., arriving at Aspinwall the 5th. The low water in the Magdalena prevented the boats from coming down. There had been no rain at Carthagena for eight months. The Bolivar is momentarily expected, with the mails from Bogota. She is ten days over due, and fears are entertained of her safety. Reports are brought by the Conway saying there has been another outbreak at the capital, but these lack confirmation. Among the passengers per Conway from Carthagena, is Mr. AUGS. S. HANABERGH and family, United States Consul, who proceed to New-York in the Arizona.

Mr. CHARLES E. PERRY, the new Consul for Aspinwall, took possession of the Consulate on the 1st of June.

The French steamship Panama, sailed from Aspinwall (Colon) for St. Nazaire on the evening of the 1st inst., with a large number of passengers and 4,743 packages of merchandise. On the 1st of January, 1870, the St. Nazaire line will have a connecting line on South Pacific, which will compete with the Pacific (English) Steam Navigation Company.

The steamer Montijo, from Chiriqui and Sona, arrived at Panama on the morning of the 3d instant. Small-pox, of a malignant type, had made its appearance at David, in Chiriqui, and the place had been deserted except by the old people. On the 25th of May, a shock of an earthquake was felt, and the old men and women rushed into the streets. No injury, however, was done to the city.

Saturday, the 5th, was a happy day for the Acting President of Panama. By invitation of the commander of the United States sloop-of-war Jamestown, Governor VALLERINO, (Acting President, &c., &c.,) the Secretary of State and a number of ladies and gentlemen visited the Jamestown, now in the harbor of Panama. The President received the customary salute. The guests were very hospitably and sumptuously entertained by Captain TRUXTON, and were delighted with their visit. After spending a number of hours aboard, they left the trim old ship riding the peaceful waters of the bay, and returned within the walls of Panama, with recollections of a good time spent in the company of the gentlemanly officers of the Jamestown.

The United States gunboat Yantic, Captain ABBOTT, arrived at Aspinwall on the 6th inst., direct from Port-au-Prince. A French man-of-war had arrived off the island with yellow fever on board, but there had been no communication with her, and the Yantic is entirely free from disease.

The Neva reached Aspinwall Sunday evening, the 6th, bringing 161 passengers and a large quantity of freight.

The Panama Railroad Company's bark Idaho, from New-York May 25, reached Aspinwall on the 7th inst., after a very quick passage.

Dr. DICKSON, bearer of dispatches from President CORREOSO, reached Panama on the 7th inst. The steamer Montijo, belonging to H. SCHUBER, Esq., an enterprising American merchant, was dispatched to Agua Dulce, and returned on the 9th with the President on board. Great alarm was manifested by some people, who feared that the President might be seized on his arrival, owing to a foolish report put into circulation. All remains quiet.

DANIEL CLARK, Esq., Chief Engineer of the Peruvian Navy, arrived by the Neva, en route for Lima.

Colonel G. M. TOTTEN, Chief Engineer of the Panama Railroad, reached here per Arizona, en route for Guatemala, and, in company with WM. NELSON, Esq., Commercial Agent, sailed per steamship Costa Rica on the 11th inst.

June 9 an accident occurred on board Pacific Railroad Company's bark Idaho, which resulted in the killing of one man and badly wounding another.

The United States sloop-of-war Gettysburg sailed from Aspinwall for Port-au-Prince on the afternoon of the same day, all well.

There has been communication established between Aspinwall and Kingston three times a week. By the new arrangement of the Royal Mail and French Steamship Lines, all steamers call at Kingston. This makes a residence on the Isthmus quite endurable. In case of sickness, it is now an easy matter to reach the mountain districts of Jamaica, where pure, cool and invigorating air can be found. The climate of Newcastle is compared to a New-York May and June.

There is little or no sickness on the Isthmus at present. Aspinwall is perfectly healthy, and with the exception of a few cases of small-pox among the lower classes outside the walls of Panama, that city is healthy too. Although we are in the middle of the second month of the rainy season, there have been but few showers and the weather remains pleasant.

Business on the Isthmus is very dull. Owing to excessive taxation and revolutions in the State of Panama, merchants complain bitterly.

HENRY ROESSLE, an Albanian, paid Panama a visit recently, stopping at a first-class hotel, giving dinners, ordering the best brands of wine, &c., until one fine morning he disappeared, leaving the landlord his luggage. He next turned up in Aspinwall, and the last heard of him he had shipped on board the Yantic as coal-passer.

To-night, the 15th, the theatre at Panama is to be opened by an Italian Opera troupe. Among the artists are Signor Pietro Visoni, Signora Louisa Riva de Visoni, Prima Donna; Signor Luigi Stephini, Signor Eugenio Luisis, Signor Timoleon Barattini.

PANAMA, Tuesday, June 15, 1869.

The Pacific Steam Navigation Company's steamer Peru, Commander D. M. HAMMIL, from South American ports, arrived on the afternoon of the 3d inst.

CHILI.

The dreary debates and long-pending trial consequent on the impeachment of the Judges of the Supreme Court, Messrs. MONTT, PALMA, BARRIGA and VALENZUELA, have at length been terminated by the acquittal of all the accused.

The agricultural exhibition continues to attract thousands of visitors daily.

By a Presidential decree the following articles have been declared free of import duty: Tar, anchors, chains, and all articles used in the construction and repairing of vessels, as also all kinds of provisions intended for use on board ship, even though they be stored on shore.

We take the following from El Mercurio of Valparaiso, of May 17:

"During Wednesday afternoon, the weather, which had been remarkably fine up to that time, commenced to wear a threatening appearance, and by 2 A. M. on Thursday a northerly wind set in with appearance of a 'blow home.' At 5 A. M. it settled down for a good blow, and, in consequence, all was activity in the bay in securing the shipping in the tiers and at single anchor. The barometer fell steadily all day, and by 4 P. M. afternoon a very heavy sea set in, causing considerable damage to the Government works in front of the bonded stores in course of erection. In one place the sea made a breach, washing away the esplanade to within seven paces of the new building, and further on the sea wall and esplanade have been almost totally destroyed. The foundation stones of the sea wall having been laid on the rocks without cement of any kind, some of them have been displaced, leaving the part running above the water line, and which is laid with cement, intact, thus forming an arch under which the sea rushed in, carrying back with it as it receded enormous quantities of earth, used to fill in the esplanade. The damage to the works is estimated at $150,000, and if the norther had lasted a few hours longer, or if it had been equal in strength to others that have been felt here, the destruction of the works and buildings would have been complete. The news of the disaster brought some hundreds of persons to the spot, but not one evinced the slightest surprise at what had happened, all appearing to be perfectly well aware of the flimsy nature of the construction of the works."

Exchange on London at 3 to 30, 60 and 90 days, at 46d.@46¼d., 45½d.@45¾d.; on Paris, at 4.80, 4.82½, 4.75@4.77½.

PERU.

News from Peru is not of great importance. The yellow fever is fast disappearing, there being but few cases to report. The measures for the prosperity of the country are now being taken by the Government in the shape of the irrigation of the fertile province of Piura, in the northern region, and of the level grounds of Islay, which are now without vegetation, in conjunction with the railway works, are a grand improvement which promises soon to change the aspect of affairs through the whole of the Department of Arequipa, in spite of the constant announcement by every mail of severe earthquake shocks.

The exploring expedition in the mountains of Chanchamayo is progressing favorably. The plan of having quick communication from the Pacific coast to the River Amazon depends entirely on the success of the exploring expedition.

HENRY C. BRENT, Esq., has been recognized officially as United States Chargé d'Affaires, ad interim, during the absence of General HOVEY.

BOLIVIA.

News from the capital, La Paz, is meagre. President MALGAREJO had returned from his military tour from near the Peruvian frontier on the 14th of May.

In the capital some cases of typhus fever had occurred, causing considerable alarm. The Sanitary Board had adopted certain precautions, one of which was the detention in Nasoara of mule-drivers coming from Tacna.

Rumors of discontent in the southern provinces having reached headquarters, a force of 700 men, under General IRIGOYEN, had been ordered to depart thither.

THE TURF.

Trotting on the Union Course, L. I.

Two trotting matches came off on the above course yesterday afternoon, but in consequence of most of the trotting habitués being absent at Narragansett Park meeting, the attendance was limited, and confined almost entirely to the personal friends of the owners of the respective horses. The first match trotted was for $500, mile heats, three in five, between W. H. NELSON'S b. g. Andrew Johnson, to wagon, and Mr. CLARENCE'S bl. s. Prince, in harness. The namesake of the late President was the favorite in the betting, $100 to $40 being the current odds on his winning the race. Prince won the first heat in 3:07, the other horse evidently not trying for it. In the second heat, Prince was distanced in 2:54.

The second match was also for $500, mile heats, three in five, to wagon, between W. H. NELSON'S g. g. Gray Harry, and J. MCLOUGHLIN'S cr. c. g. Grocery Boy. Gray Harry won in three straight heats. Time—3:10, 3:09, 3:10½.

BASE BALL.

Mutual vs. Yale—A Short and Handsome Contest.

The visit of the University Nine, of Yale College, to the Metropolis yesterday afforded the admirers of our national game an opportunity of seeing one of the prettiest and quickest played contests on record. On the occasion of the first game of the match, at New-Haven, on the 9th inst., the champions barely escaped defeat, the score standing 16 to 18 in a short and well-played game. Although there was a greater disparity in the score of the contest yesterday, it has seldom been equaled as a display of fielding, while it was without doubt the shortest game of the season.

The game opened with a score of 1 to 0 in favor of the Mutuals, sharp fielding marking the play of both nines. In the second inning, after giving the Collegians their second blank, the Mutuals hit HOOKER very freely, and being assisted by a little wild throwing, ran up a score of 7 runs. In the balance of the game they only made 7 more runs, making 15 in all. In the third innings the Collegians made their first run, and in the sixth they obtained four more on clean hits, HOOKER making a home run on the longest hit of the game. In the last three innings the Yales were unable to add anything to their score, and at 4:35, just one hour and forty minutes from its commencement, the game was ended. The Mutuals have never played a better fielding game, not even excepting their memorable contest with the Cincinnati Clubs.

The few errors committed by the Yales were lost sight of in admiration of the many difficult stops and accurate throws of MCCLINTOCK, MCCUTCHEON and WHEELER. The outfield was admirably attended to by DEMING and CONDIET; the latter making his play by a very pretty catch, which was one of the features of the game. RICHARDS also made a difficult catch of a foul fly, putting out the last man in the ninth inning. FRENCH'S play at first was perfect, fifteen of the twenty-seven outs being at his base.

Of the Mutuals, where all did so well we do not wish to particularize. With the exception of a couple of wild throws by E. MILLS, not a muff was made, which is the more rare, as the Mutuals do not surprise their friends by such displays as often as they might.

The Mutuals met the Collegians at the New-Haven Depot at 1 o'clock, and from that time till they left for home last night on the 11 o'clock boat, every attention was shown them. At 5 o'clock an elegant dinner was discussed at the Metropolitan Hotel, at which some twenty-five members of both clubs sat down. Afterward the Yales visited Niblo's, and the Olympic, at the invitation of the President of the Mutuals, Mr. JOHN WILDEY. The Collegians were delighted with their reception and treatment, and will long bear the Mutual Club in remembrance. The score was as follows:

Columbia Yacht Club Regatta—A Dull Race—The Edith R. Gage the Winner.

The second annual regatta of the Columbia Yacht Club came off yesterday afternoon, the start being made from the Club-house at the foot of West Fifty-seventh-street at 11:58. Only eight of the thirteen boats belonging to the Club entered. They were: First-class sloops—Lollie, Commodore J. A. Weaver; Edith R. Gage, Gage and Bell; Ethelind, Vice-Commodore C. F. Tompkins. Second-class sloops—Onward, Charles Scattergood; Rebecca, James Skillen; Uncle Ben, R. Weaver. Third-class sloops—Lottie, Osborn and Hanlon; Betsy, J. F. Maney.

The start was very well made considering the unfavorable circumstances, there not being sufficient wind to enable the boats to get in position. The Lillie took the lead, followed closely by the Edith R. Gage and Ethelind, the other boats creeping slowly behind. When the yachts had got about a mile up the river a slight breeze sprang up from the southeast and they then began to scud along, Lillie still maintaining the lead, but under the favorable influences of the breeze having to give place to the Edith R. Gage, who maintained the leading position throughout the race. The upper stake boat was passed, first by the Edith R. Gage, the Lillie being about one minute and a half behind her; the Onward third. The other boats were all considerably astern. The run home was made by tacking with a pretty good wind from the southeast. The race was completed and the stake boat turned as follows:

	H.	M.	S.
Edith R. Gage	5	—	—
Lillie	5	3	—
Onward	5	14	45
Rebecca	5	58	—
Betsy	6	11	—

The Lottie came in third, but did not go as far as the upper stake-boat, and was, therefore, out of the race. The winners were declared to be the Edith R. Gage, first prize; Onward, second class, and Betsy, third class. The prizes are a piece of plate for the winner in each class.

The course was from a stake-boat off Fifty-seventh-street, to Mount St. Vincent, near Yonkers, a distance of twenty-two miles.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

Street Dogs and Hydrophobia—The Life-Saving Apparatus by the Water-Side—Records of Mortality.

The Metropolitan Board of Health held its usual weekly session yesterday afternoon, President G. B. LINCOLN in the chair.

The Sanitary Committee, to whom had been referred a communication from Mr. HENRY BERGH, protesting against the pounding and indiscriminate slaughter of dogs by the City authorities, reported that, in their opinion, an ordinance should be passed by the Board to prevent those animals, in one way or another, from running about loosely in warm weather within the limits of the Metropolitan District. In the course of the report the Committee stated that the causes of spontaneous hydrophobia in dogs are unknown; that the disease prevails in all countries, at all seasons of the year, and among both sexes of the animals; that it is contagious; that it is most prevalent in places where dogs rove in great numbers, and that a single affected dog will cause wide-spread epidemic where many run at large. Hence the necessity of the proposed ordinance. The matter was referred to the Counsel for an opinion.

One of the Sanitary Inspectors of the Board reported that at noon yesterday the upper half of the sunken square bounded by Sixty-first and Sixty-fourth streets and Madison and Fourth avenues, was still in a very filthy condition. Counsel was instructed to order a final order to be placed in the hands of the Sanitary Superintendent for immediate fulfillment.

Residents of various parts of the City complained of the filthiness of the streets, and asked the Board to do all that it could to have them cleaned at once. Among the other localities mentioned was the Sixth-avenue, from Forty-fifth to Fifty-ninth-street, which, it was alleged, had not been swept once during the past four years. The President was asked to confer with the Street-cleaning Department relative to the matter.

Sanitary Superintendent Harris presented a report from Inspector JUDSON relative to the number, location and condition of the life-saving apparatus now in use at the different ferries and wharves about the City. Dr. HARRIS stated in a letter accompanying the report that twenty-four thirty drowning persons had been rescued within the past nine months by this means, or one for every apparatus. Dr. JUDSON found all the apparatus in good condition. He recommended that a complete station be established on every pier from the foot of Grand-street, East River, to the foot of Gansevoort-street, North River; and that along the entire water-side of the Metropolitan District those points be selected for the establishment of rescue stations where children and adults are most exposed to the danger of falling overboard. Attention was called also to the importance of maintaining an adequate supply of life-saving instruments on board of steamboats, especially those bearing large companies of excursionists. The report was referred to the Sanitary Superintendent.

Dr. HARRIS' weekly report contained the figures of mortality in the Cities of New-York and Brooklyn, for the week ending on Saturday last, which have already been published. In concluding his letter the Superintendent states that in Breslau and several other German towns, small-pox has assumed the character of an epidemic. At no former period in twenty years has there been such prevalence of that loathsome malady. From information received from those and the other cities of Europe, we are warranted in stating that in no other great city in the world is small-pox more completely under control than in New-York. Vaccination is again proved to be the only adequate safeguard when the contagion is threatening. The presence of yellow fever in hospital ships in the Lower Bay and its occurrence in West Indian vessels will not endanger the public health, for it is controlled by the simplest of means, namely, absolute quarantine and disinfection of all infected things.

The Board finally adjourned until Monday next.

The Spanish Duellist and the Barber—A Tragic Comedy.

Testimony was taken yesterday afternoon at Jefferson Market Police Court, in the case of JOSE FERRAR DEL CONTO, editor of El Cronista, a Spanish journal published in this City, who was accused by LORENZO THOMASELLI, a barber doing business on Broadway, with coming into his store on the 31st ult., and threatening his life. The affair has excited considerable attention from the fact that it indicates the bitter animosity existing between Spanish and Cuban residents in this City, growing out of the revolutionary movements in Cuba; and also because the defendant was a principal in a duel recently fought by him in Canada with a Cuban gentleman named FRANCISCO DEL PORTO, the editor of La Revolucion, a paper devoted to the insurrectionary cause. The encounter was ferociously conducted by Señor DEL CONTO, who conceived that his opponent had grievously injured his honor by newspaper lampoons; the result was the serious wounding of the latter. It was a very hot-tempered display on both sides. Previous to its occurrence, as is alleged, the Cuban gentleman circulated a small sheet, whose title had a punning resemblance to Señor DEL CONTO'S name, and which contained satirical references to the latter, and a caricature of him. The caricature was conspicuously hung in THOMASELLI'S barber's shop, where Cuban patriots largely congregated; and thither went the Spanish editor for the purpose of destroying the obnoxious piece. The proprietor complained that on Señor DEL CONTO'S arrival he menaced his life, and he makes this conduct the ground for a criminal action. At the examination Mr. HENRY SHERMAN, brother of General SHERMAN, acted as counsel for the plaintiff, and Mr. HENRY MORANGE for the defendant. The evidence was of a personal nature, without being very conclusive in proving an assault, and warrants the conjecture that the case will not long remain in Court. The defence proposed to prove that the caricature in question was justification for any angry demonstrations which Señor DEL CONTO might have made; that the complainant was aware of the hostility which existed between the editors at the time he permitted it to be exhibited in his shop; that he saw his Cuban customers laugh at and comment on it, but made no attempt to remove it; and that the accused did not offer to draw a pistol—all of which had been partially but not conclusively proven in the examination of THOMASELLI. The complainant, on being questioned by his counsel, deposed that the defendant had entered his place, crying, "Muerto, muerto," meaning that he would kill him. The case was finally adjourned till next Saturday afternoon.

Robbery at the Brooklyn Post Office—Arrest of the Thief, and His Confession of Guilt.

EUGENE B. TUNISON, a clerk in the Brooklyn Post Office, was arrested yesterday, on the charge of robbing the mail and appropriating the proceeds. TUNISON is about 27 years of age, and was appointed stamp clerk in November last, under the Postmastership of ANTHONY CAMPBELL. His duties included the sorting of letters from 7 to 9:30 o'clock every morning, and during the remainder of the day he sold stamps at the window. In January last the porter found an open letter in the water-closet just after TUNISON had left it. That circumstance, and subsequent indications of dishonorable work, led to the suspicion that TUNISON was stealing letters daily and appropriating their contents to his own use. Mr. GAYLOR, the Post Office Detective, was informed of the matter, and as soon as that official could spare time from other engagements, he addressed himself to the duty of looking after Mr. TUNISON. He soon discovered that the suspicions alluded to were too well-founded. On the 15th inst. not less than thirty letters, all torn open, were found in the bowl of the water-closet just after TUNISON had left it, and yesterday he was arrested in the closet, having a letter which he had opened in his hand. He was promptly taken before Commissioner JONES, when he pleaded guilty, and was committed to await the action of the Grand Jury.

On visiting the boarding-house of TUNISON, in Willoughby-street, a number of articles were found in his room, all of which had been stolen from the Post Office. The operations of the prisoner appear to have been of so reckless a character, that he can give no approximate idea of the extent of his depredations upon the mail. Last December he was a member of the Christmas Committee, Mr. CAMPBELL being on the County Committee. The former was subsequently released on $5,000 bail.

The Explosion of the Erie Railroad Disaster.

We published yesterday a statement to the effect that one JOHN BOWEN had been arrested, charged with having obstructed the track of the Erie Railroad, thereby causing the several disasters and accidents which have lately occurred on the road. Naturally supposing that the management of the Erie road would be glad to have the points of the evidence against the man or his rumored confession of his crime published, in order to set the road right before the traveling public, we sent reporters to the Erie office to obtain such facts as would clear up the mystery of the terrible Carr's Rock disaster and other minor casualties. No facts were obtainable; the confession of BOWEN, though made, as stated, six days ago, was not to be had, and no information of the commitment of the man or the nature of the charges preferred could be elicited. The Erie managers state that the publication of the confession at this time would warn other guilty parties who are now being watched.

Sudden Death of a Printer.

EDWARD Y. ALLEN, a compositor on the TIMES, died very suddenly of apoplexy at his residence in Williamsburg on Wednesday afternoon. He attended to his duties the night previous in apparently good health, but on his arrival home complained of a headache, which did not excite any alarm, but only an hour or two later he repeated his complaint, and the usual remedies were applied and he was left to rest. The hour having arrived for him to arise, his mother rapped on his door, but receiving no reply, entered the room and found him apparently asleep, but really lifeless. He served three years in the war as a member of the Brooklyn Fourteenth, and received his discharge after having been severely wounded at Gettysburg. He was respected by a large number of acquaintances as a man of benevolence, honesty and sobriety.

Capture of Freight-Car Thieves—Large Quantities of Stolen Silks Recovered.

Some time since about $1,100 worth of raw silk was stolen from an Erie freight train, while in transit from Jersey City to Paterson. The Police of both cities were at once notified, and the utmost efforts made to find a clue to the perpetrators of the robbery. Yesterday evening, from information received, the result of cautious plans made by Chief FOWLER and his assistants, two men were arrested near Hudson City, and were brought to the Jersey City Police Station. These arrests led to the recovery of a large quantity of the raw silk stolen, as already stated. For obvious reasons the Police do not wish to make public any further details, as by so doing the ends of justice might be defeated.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

Members of other companies of the regiment are invited to participate.

About 9 o'clock last evening a box of jewelry, valued at $65, was stolen from front of No. 200 Bowery. It belonged to a young peddler who had a stand at the place. He deposited it under the window of the store at that number, after having requested one of the inmates to watch it during his absence. He was gone a short time, and on his return found that his property, which embraced his entire stock in trade, had disappeared.

Late last evening CATHARINE MCGOWAN, of No. 86 Oliver-street, attempted to jump overboard at the Catharine-street Ferry with a child in her arms, but was prevented by JAMES MCGUIRE, of No. 134 Cherry-street. She was locked up, and the child was transferred to the father.
